Kosygin Demands Israeli Forces Removal

Flood Threat Goes on

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sandbagging crews were out all along the Missouri River today seeking to shore up levees threatened by the extended run of high water down the Big Muddy.

High water still covered Corning, a town of 130 persons in northwest Holt County, about 25 miles south of the Iowa line.

Women and children were moved out, but most of the men remained to keep an eye on the situation. A levee near the town broke Saturday, causing a big rush of water into the town.

To the south, an area around Big Lake Park was flooded.

The secondary crest coming down the Missouri sent the river stage at St. Joseph to 21.7 feet, a rise of a foot and a half in the past 24 hours.

There was little change in the stage at Boonville and Jefferson City.

Warden Harold R. Swenson of the Missouri State Penitentiary said he had five 15-man crews out sandbagging levees in the Hartsburg area. He said in some spots the sandbags were holding off up to 18 inches of water and little seepage was reported so far.

The Coast Guard banned boat traffic from Waverly to the river's mouth, a step taken to prevent waves from spilling over the tops of levees.

U.S. 24 still was closed five miles south of Carrollton and just west of Brunswick. U.S. 65 was closed south of Carrollton.

JON DAVID HARNYAK, Don Smith, Danny Howell, and Jerry Stanfill of the Nite Raiders, left to right, gave a winning performance at the state Battle of the Bands competition on the rodeo grounds Saturday. The boys, between 14 and 18, have performed together three years.

Johnson Lists Points For Mideast Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson declared today that "certainly troops must be withdrawn" from conquered territory in the wartorn Middle East but firmly linked the pullback to negotiations of a general Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

In a major statement of U.S. policy, the President dealt with the withdrawal of Israeli forces from captured Arab territory as a matter for negotiation along with the problem of Arab refugees, freedom of passage through international waterways, Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist and a limitation on the Middle East arms race.

"Certainly troops must be withdrawn, but there must also be recognized rights of national life—progress in solving the refugee problem—freedom of innocent maritime passage—limitation of the arms race—and respect for political independence and territorial integrity," Johnson said.

The President added that a simple withdrawal of Israeli forces would "not be a prescription for peace but for renewed hostilities," unless accompanied by negotiations for a general peace settlement in the area.

Johnson spoke to a foreign policy conference of educators at the State Department. But his policy statement was set in the context of global debate with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who spoke at a special U.N. General Assembly session in New York an hour later.

Johnson, laying down "five great principles of peace" for the Middle East, appealed to the nations there to shun another arms race, abandon "a diet of hate" and strive for a settlement.

"The world is watching," he said for the peace of the world is at stake."

The President's statement generally appeared to support what is understood here to be an Israeli position on troop withdrawals: That is, any agreement to withdraw Israeli troops from Egypt, Jordan or Syria should be linked to issues of vital interest to Israel, notably Arab recognition.

Johnson for the most part was careful not to name specific countries, but it was clear he was speaking of Egypt when he referred to the closing of the Straits of Tiran—an action announced by Egyptian President Gamal Abiel Nasser about two weeks before the fighting started.

"If a single act of folly was more responsible for this explosion (the recent war) than any other," Johnson said, "it was the arbitrary and dangerous announced decision that the Straits of Tiran would be closed."

Johnson, saying Israel and and Arab states must be the peacemakers, promised U.S. support for peace measures both through the United Nations and through methods.

"I offer assurance to all, the President said, "that the government of the United States will do its part for peace, in every form, and at every level and at every hour.

Evidently with a view to the Soviet-American confrontation—dramatized by Johnson's and Kosygin's personal declarations—the President referred to his efforts to improve relations with Moscow.

He spoke of cultural exchanges and similar agreements such as space treaty, and urged agreements to block the spread of nuclear weapons and prevent an antiballistic missile arms race.

"We have tried to enlarge, and have made great progress in enlarging the arena of common action with the Soviet Union," Johnson said.

His personal appeal for "common action" with Moscow tackling the Middle East problems led into his statement on that crisis area.

It was in this statement that he outlined a set of five principles for a "durable peace" and then dealt specifically with the hottest current issue posed by the Arab states and the Soviets—withdrawal of Israeli troops from conquered territory.

"There are some who have urged, as a single, simple solution, an immediate return to the situation as it was on June 4," Johnson said. The war started on June 5 and in the next week Israel overran sections of Egypt, Jordan and Syria which it holds under the present ceasefire.

The President's speech was prepared for a meeting of 800 U.S. educators at the State Department.

Blame Pinned On U.S

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin demanded today that Israel withdraw from all occupied areas in the Arab nations so that a climate might be created for peace in the Middle East.

The Soviet leader, addressing a special emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly, accused the United States of encouraging Israel to make war on the Arabs. He warned that renewed conflict in the Middle East could lead to nuclear war.

Kosygin spoke only an hour after President Johnson, in a major policy statement in Washington, called on the United Nations to shun rigid attitudes in the search for Middle East stability.

Kosygin attacked U.S. foreign policy in virtually all areas of tension in the world, from Vietnam to Cuba but reserved his iciest blasts for U.S. and British roles in the drama of Israel's swift victory over the Arabs early this month.

"The aggressor (Israel) is in a state of military intoxication," Kosygin insisted.

Kosygin issued a "categorical demand" that all Israeli forces be withdrawn from the Suez Canal zone and all other occupied territories, so that a climate might be created for establishing peace in the Middle East.

"Only the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the seized territories may change the situation in favor of detente and the creation of conditions for peace in the Middle East," Kosygin said.

He said the Soviet Union "will undertake all measures within its power both in the United Nations and outside this organization in order to achieve the elimination of the consequences of aggression and promote the establishment of a lasting peace in the region."

He said the world was watching to see whether the United Nations "would be able to give a due rebuff to the aggressor."

"No nation wants war," Kosygin said. "Nobody doubts that if a new world war started, it would inevitably be a nuclear one."

The Soviet leader said, "It should be taken into account that the continuing war in this area (Vietnam) is fraught with the terrible danger of escalating into a major military clash between the powers.

"As long as Israeli troops continue to occupy territories seized by them and urgent measures are not taken to eliminate the consequences of aggression, a military conflict can flare up at any moment," Kosygin said. "That is why the Soviet Union took the initiative to convene an urgent meeting of the members of the United Nations General Assembly."

Heated Remap Issue Again Comes up for House Action

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A fight over congressional redistricting resumed in the Missouri House today.

Last week Republicans, Negroes and a group of dissident Democrats went all out for the Senate version of redistricting and staved off all amendments.

Pending when the House reconvened today was an amendment by Rep. Earl L. Sponsler, D-Cabool, designed to add Democratic strength to the 8th District, now represented by Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Houston.

Under the Senate plan, both the 8th and the 6th of northwestern Missouri could become swing districts.

Some rural Democrats gathered early today in an effort to agree on a last ditch maneuver against the Senate version.

Members were slow to arrive and even the man who called the caucus, Rep. Ruben Schapeler, D-Butler, said he wasn't sure they could come up with a winning substitute in time.

Few changes were made in the operational budgets of state agencies.

Goldwater Praises Service of Colonel

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Barry M. Goldwater, Republican candidate for President in 1964, gave the address and officiated in a ceremony at which a memorial to a World War II hero from Caruthersville, Col. John B. England, was dedicated in the City Park Saturday. England and Goldwater, both in the air force, were friends.

England was Missouri's leading ace in Europe, accounting for 19 enemy planes shot down. He also served in the Korean war. He was killed in France Nov. 17, 1954, while on temporary duty from Alexandria Air Force Base, La.

The memorial includes a T-33 jet trainer airplane, given by the air force, mounted on a base bearing a plaque citing England's military service record. He was born in Caruthersville.

In his address, Goldwater lauded England as an example of young American manhood, who respect their country and its flag, and who are willing to fight and die for freedom. He declared that these, fortunately, are in the majority as compared with "those idiotic young men who burn their draft cards and show disrespect for the flag."

Referring to the Vietnam war, he was applauded when he stated that "England's policy was to win -- not turn tail and come home." His remarks left no doubt that he is opposed to the way the war has been conducted in Vietnam and that the United States should begin fighting to win.

Present at the ceremony were England's widow, Marilyn, since re-married, and his three children, Bruce, Carole and Barry, who was named for Goldwater.

The former Senator from Arizona flew in his private plane to the SAC base at Blytheville, Ark., and was escorted to Caruthersville by leading citizens and base air force officers. After the ceremony he returned to the base and took off for Washington, D.C., where he planned to land before the night.

In coming to Caruthersville, Goldwater entered a Missouri Democratic stronghold. Democratic leaders were on the speaking stand with him, such as State Sen. J. F. Patterson, Pemiscot Representative Charles W. Foley, and others. Jack Hutchison of Caruthersvile made the introductions.

The only mention of a political nature in the proceedings was Hutchison's statement in introducing Goldwater that "there are many people who say he should have been elected President." This remark received the loudest applause from the audience. Rain fell before the ceremony.

Gas Pedal Sticks Driver Leaps Out

Donald Hendrix, 37, sustained scrapes and scratches when he jumped from his car on highway 62, three miles west of Charleston at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Hendrix told the highway patrol that the car accelerator stuck and he pushed what he thought was the neutral button on his push-button drive transmission but hit the wrong one.

The car went out of control, ran off the road, into a ditch and across a field. The car circled and headed back to the road as Hendrix jumped out. The car then went into another field, circled around, came back on the highway and stopped a quarter of a mile down the road.

Hendrix was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Two East Prairians were injured in a one-car accident when their pickup truck went out of control and overturned on Route A, two miles west of Dorena at 5:45 a.m. Saturday.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Some 200 persons will drown this summer in home swimming pools.

Most of the victims will be children. Most will die needlessly.

The home pool has no waves, tides, or motorboats to worry about. Yet, despite certain safety advantages over the lake or shore, pools too often are the sites of unnecessary accidents.

The number of home pool drownings in recent years has risen in proportion to the increasing popularity of backyard pools. Privately owned permanent pools now number nearly half-a-million.

Although pool owners are not charged higher premiums on their homeowners insurance, safety specialists warn that the premium for forgetting vital safety practices may be higher than anyone wants to pay.

A two-year-old boy was riding his tricycle in the backyard as his mother watched him from the living room window. Her attention was diverted by a telephone call. While she talked "two or three minutes" her son rode his shiny red tricycle into the family's swimming pool and drowned.

This tragedy occurred because the boy's family violated the first two rules on this list of 10 "musts" for home pool safety:

1. In-ground pools should be fenced by high vertical wooden slabs with pointed tops or chain link fences with inwardly slanted tops of some sharp material such as barbed wire. Gates to permanent above-ground pools should be kept locked and ladders to plastic above ground pools should be removed when pools are not in use.

2. Watch children closely. Lack of supervision is the largest single cause of toddler's drownings. An occasional glance from a house window is not enough. You must be outside with your child.

3. Under no circumstances should a child who cannot swim be allowed to use inflated toys. Such playthings are not lifesavers but potential killers. They may tempt young swimmers to try feats beyond their ability.

4. Your pool skimmer can be used to fish drowning swimmers out of the pool. Keep it handy at all times, along with a complete first aid kit.

5. Post safety rules, emergency procedures, and first aid instructions on permanent signs near the pool. Keep emergency telephone numbers next to the phone.

6. Bottles, glassware, food, and barbeque equipment should be kept away from poolside - and barefoot swimmers.

7. Construct poolside pavements of roughly textured cement or use an abrasive paint to prevent slippery surfaces.

8. Mark the depth of in-ground pools with permanent paint and divide shallow and deep sections with buoy lines.

9. Be sure the water is deep enough for the height of your diving board. Depth must be a minimum of eight feet for a "low board." For boards 10-16 feet high, the water depth should equal the height of the board.

10. Allow only a professional electrician to install and repair wiring, pumps, and lighting fixtures. Keep portable electrical equipment 10 feet from the pool to reduce the danger of shock.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING

This flap-eared fellow who makes mini-public opinion polls by listening to what people are saying to each other in public places has come in with another report.

Here's what he overhears:

There is no credibility gap between income taxpayers and these know-it-all computers the Internal Revenue Service is using. The form-filler-outers believe what they have read - that the computers can spot a leaky report like uncanny. Result: Never have so many been so careful about so much.

People aren't nearly as hung up over the "true" story of the Kennedy assassination as writers of all these assassination books keep telling them they are.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if everyone could be as optimistic over the outcome of Vietnam and our other big problems as managers of big league baseball teams profess to be over the outcome of the pennant races?

No wonder people drive the way they do when the cars are not only made to go fast, but ADVERTISED to go fast - with exciting, exotic names that practically DARE you to turn 'em loose.

Junk mail is getting to be a bigger nuisance every day. Why not cool it by heating up the mailing cost?

Has anyone ever pinned down these student stirrer-uppers on just exactly what it is they want to make them happy?

That, says our snoopy surveyor, is what the people he overhears are saying to each other. Could one of them have been you?

Excesses of the Earl Warren United States supreme court have caused an acceleration of activity in states to adopt the Missouri plan for filling judicial positions in state courts.

The Warren court has rewritten the laws of the country. It has gone far beyond interpreting the nation's laws. It has taken an active legislative role.

This example hasn't been lost on the states.

The Missouri plan is a compromise appointive-elective system for filling judicial positions. Since its adoption Iowa, Kansas, Alaska, Colorado and Nebraska have put it into effect. New York state now is considering it.

Basically the plan calls for qualified lawyers and laymen to submit a recommended list for a judgeship to the governor. The governor then fills the opening.

The plan is desirable because it is designed to lift the judiciary above politics, relieve candidates from spending time and money in running for office and relieve the average voter of the responsibility of choosing a judge, a task for which he is not well qualified.

But the citizen does have a role in the process.

The initially appointed judge must periodically run for re-election if he desires to continue in office.

In this way the voter does have a voice in the judiciary - he holds a check rein on a judge's performance. If it is unsatisfactory he can be removed.

United States supreme court justices have virtual lifetime tenure no matter how ill fitted they are for their work or how poorly they perform their duties. It is interesting to note that they are appointed by the President and not elected to their positions, a sad reflection on the appointive process.

The Missouri plan combines the best of two systems but it is not paradise.

It has been demonstrated that qualified lawyers and laymen like the general public occasionally possess better hindsight than foresight.

The plan has also made apparent that no system is any better than the men administering it. Not all the choices by the committees and the governors, regardless of superior qualifications, have produced the best possible choices for the judiciary.

Politics haven't been entirely eliminated.

DOWN TO EARTH, YOU SOCIAL REBELS

A recent report of the American Medical Association states that the majority of drug abusers in this country are young people under the age of 30.

Coincidentally, but not accidentally, one of the slogans of these young people is, "You can't trust anyone over 30."

Even if we view the thing in the best possible light - change the word "abusers" to "experimenters" and grant that the younger generation has good reason to be dissatisfied with the world they are scheduled to inherit - the whole youth protest movement is basically self-defeating.

Short of killing themselves or wrecking their minds - as some of them are doing - today's youths will survive the all-too-fleeting years of their 20s and wake up one day to find themselves in the not-to-be-trusted category. What will their slogan be then?

Neither can the social rebels reject the present world and build the brave, new and beautiful world they talk so much about strictly from scratch.

"No one," says Dr. John A. Logan Jr., president of Hollins College, "can live without a knowledge of history in the broadest sense unless he is prepared to repeat all the mistakes of the past.

"No one can live entirely by reference to present problems and concerns. Perspective is everything."

We can't know where we are going without a knowledge of the probable consequences of our acts, and only some reference to the accumulated experiences of mankind can provide that knowledge.

The hippies, the acid-heads, the grass-smokers - lotus-eaters all - say they are involved in a search for their "real selves." But, says Logan, each of us needs to answer not only the question, "Who am I?" but also, "Where am I?"

We all live at a certain point in an evolving continuum of time. No quest for personal values can be successful except by reference to where our present standards came from and how and why they developed as they did.

"St. Paul is as relevant as Sartre, and Thomas Jefferson has at least as much to tell us about our society as Ayn Rand." Logan says.

Fortunately, the under-30s can't stop the calendar. It is to be hoped that the inevitable passing of time will bring them not only age and cooling passions but the wisdom to enable them to relate their youthful dreams to the world as it is, and perhaps change it for the better.

ON EDUCATION

Time was when education in this country was symbolized by the little red schoolhouse. Today, the symbol is the big yellow school bus.

It used to be a pleasant sight to see the children playing in the schoolyard, oblivious to the fact that some of them had different colored skin, and different religions, and different ancestors. Now, you find them very mindful of this, properly proportioned, smuggled in cars and buses which lumber in from every direction and selected neighborhoods.

Years ago, youngsters went to school to learn the three r's: readin', ritin', and rithmetic. There seems to be more emphasis today on two other r's: rock and roll. Only in institutions of higher education is a third "r" added: either radicalism or rioting.

In days of old, school kids prayer to Our Father in Heaven. This is now against the law. The emphasis these days is on instilling a proper respect for Big Brother Who Art, in Washington.

When they talked about passing, students used to refer to the grades they were getting. Nowadays, passing has to do with a drag session, or zipping around a trailer truck at 80 miles an hour. As for grades, they're the things that go uphill and downhill. Students aren't graded; they're adjusted.

No longer will you find evidences of brutality such as hickory switches in schools. Only zip guns, switchblade knives, brass knuckles and other aids to conformity.

The teacher, too, has a different function. With a degree or two from a teachers' college, he or she is qualified to check the electronic teaching aids to make sure that they are working properly. And, the qualified teacher knows precisely how to arrange the cards for scoring by the electronic computer.

Kids used to be taught what was right.

Now all they hear about is rights.

TROUBLE IN PUERTO RICO

A plebiscite will be held in Puerto Rico on July 23 to set the future governmental course of that island. The people will vote on three propositions: one proposing to retain the present Commonwealth status, another to extend statehood, and a third to establish an independent nation. If the last one carries, it will have to be voted on by the U.S. Congress.

Officials of the Commonwealth have warned that several groups of communist-oriented revolutionaries are planning a terroristic campaign to disrupt the July 23 election. This is not surprising, since communists hate and fear free elections. The threatened terrorism in Puerto Rico could bring the same kind of violence that has afflicted other Latin American countries in recent months.

The Puerto Rico revolutionaries claim that they are in favor of independence for the Commonwealth. The kind of independence they would bring may be judged by the fact that they champion Fidel Castro and have a permanent representative at the Cuban headquarters of the Tri-Continental Congress. This is the organization established in January 1966 to coordinate what its founders call "wars of liberation in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

What the revolutionaries are really calling for is civil war in Puerto Rico. They may not be able to bring that about, but they could cause enough trouble to check the economic progress that has been taking place there. One of their aims is to reduce employment, thus creating discontent among the people. They are using the coming election as a focal point for their disruptive efforts. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It was the Democratic study group, dominated by some of the staunchest liberal supporters of President Johnson, which cut the ground out from under LBJ's railroad mediation - arbitration bill to head off the railroad strike. This rift between the liberal Democratic leadership and the President has been played down. Neither side is anxious to advertise it. However, it was a very serious factor during the debate over the anti-strike bill.

Long before the strike deadline, Johnson asked Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, chairman of the war labor board during World War II, to draft an act which would head off a tie-up of the nation's railroads.

Morse, who's a Johnson critic on foreign policy, risked a showdown with his labor friends in Oregon by drafting and introducing the bill.

He came up with a compromise whereby mediators would do their best to settle the strike during 90 days. But, if they failed, the unions would be forced to accept the mediators' terms for a period of two years after which the agreement would end.

Arthur Goldberg, former secretary of labor and former counsel for the United Steelworkers, advised that the Morse bill is the best possible in the emergency. George Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania, the famous labor negotiator, expressed the same opinion. So have other prominent labor experts. They describe it as a very sincere effort by President Johnson to preserve collective bargaining rather than adopt compulsory arbitration.

"The right to strike is a limited one in time of war," Morse told his labor friends. He reminded them that George Meany, now President of the AFL-CIO, had sat with him in various wartime labor disputes and voted against labor when strikes threatened.

RULE BY MINORITY

Out of the 24 unions involved in the railroad dispute, 17 have now settled with the carriers on the basis of a 5 per cent increase. The conductors are settling for 6 per cent. However, six shop craft unions, led by the international association of machinists, Roy Siemiller President, have refused.

It was Siemiller, incidentally, who broke the wage guidelines in the showdown with the airplane companies last year and almost forced congress to write a compulsory arbitration act at that time.

Sincere men are on both sides of the dispute and understandable issues are involved. The shop craft unions, however, are only 50,000 men compared with the 500,000 who have signed up with the carriers. Though the shop crafts include the metal workers, the blacksmiths, electricians and other skilled crafts, the machinists are the biggest group. They have seen wages for similar work skyrocket in the airplane and other industries, while the pay of skilled railroad labor has been kept down. This resulted from an old railroad brotherhood principle that wage increases should apply across the board to the man who sweeps up the baggageroom as well as to the highly skilled engineer.

The dispute became more accentuated last Monday when mediators in the Long Island railroad wage controversy, headed by George Ready, ex-aide to LBJ, recommended an immediate increase of 66 cents an hour, with a total wage for shop craft workers of $4.20 an hour in the third year.

This was immediately accepted by the Rockefeller administration, and immediately increased the lobbying efforts of machinist President Siemiller, and other craft unions in the halls of congress.

Their No. 1 spokesman was Harley Staggers, the benign congressman from West Virginia, elected with strong labor support. Staggers is chairman of the house commerce committee and voted against the railroad bill. However, Republicans and southern Democrats passed the bill out of committee over his head.

Staggers then declared war on the bill, said it would pass the entire house of representatives only over his dead body.

Joining him at first were such conscientious congressmen as Frank Thompson, N.J., Jim O'Hara, Ill., John Brademas, Ind., John Dingell, Mich., and John Moss, Calif. They are strong for the President but at first put labor ahead of the President.

SIEMILLER VS. LBJ

Dingell and Moss have written a substitute bill providing for railroad seizure. Sen. Morse, however, points out that this would permit a railroad administrator to set any wages he pleased, regardless of federal mediators. He could even cut wages, and labor couldn't do anything about it. The Moss-Dingell substitute was finally defeated.

The White House brought its big guns into play to influence New York congressmen. None other than Arthur Krim of United Artists, the big money raiser for the Democrats; also Eddie Weisl, the New York attorney, telephoned New York Democrats. Joe Califano of the White House staff did likewise.

But most of them seemed more loyal to Roy Siemiller of the machinists than to LBJ.

NOTE: The railroads, once vigorously opposed to compulsory arbitration, are now veering toward it. Reason is that when mediators came in with a recommendation during the Roosevelt administration, FDR would intervene on behalf of the unions and urge management to give a little more. This started the precedent of letting labor contest a mediation board's findings while management was forced to accept. Compulsory arbitration, say some management spokesmen, would be better than lopsided mediation.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Vast Purge of Congress Planned By Rail Union's Political League

Washington, D.C.: -- During most of the heated moments of the great train crisis, President Johnson kept his cool. But some of his advisers did not. And with friendly advisers such as these the President needs no enemies. They cost the Democrats money and manpower in next year's national election when both will be hard to come by.

Throughout the railway battle the President has been his own general staff. Only those inside the White House sanctum really know how much he read, how carefully he marshaled his forces and tactics. He amazed even the not easily surprised official gadfly, Sen. Wayne Morse.

The Oregonian, easily the Senate's keenest labor expert, was in the dentist's chair at 8:40 a.m. the other morning. Suddenly the phone rang. It was not a patient. It was the President. Mr. Johnson was calling to thank him for all his help in pushing the White House strike legislation through the Senate.

And then the President quoted from an intricate speech Sen. Morse had delivered in the Senate the previous afternoon. Obviously Mr. Johnson had gotten to the Congressional Record sometime between 6:30 and 8:30 the following morning shortly after the printed proceedings are delivered, and had read the long discussion. He knew every detail.

Some days later the President, still cool but now desperately aware that he was dealing with unionists who had become the toughest bargainers in the land, called in his cabinet for this and other world matters. The rail lines were within hours of embargoing (freezing) freight in the yards. It was noontime, June 14.

He asked each of them to analyze the emergency from their Department's viewpoint. Later some of them went to the White House press office. To the amazement of some of the cabinet members present, the Secretary who decided to get toughest with the tough was Alan Stephenson Boyd, head of the new Transportation Dept. Labor doesn't like him. He doesn't enthuse over them. And unmindful, or unknowing, that the President and AFL-CIO leader George Meany had privately talked things out several days earlier, Boyd sounded off.

He lashed at the labor leader most influential in America's transportation system -- Roy Siemiller, president of the AFL-CIO Machinists, who, under his leadership, have struck everything from rare ball (gun) powder plants to jet warplane production and airlines.

"Siemiller typifies a group of arbitrary individuals," said Boyd, "extremely small in number who apparently have no concern for public welfare but only for their own selfish interests."

When Siemiller, who rarely loses his cool, learned of this, he nearly burst a stitch. He was home recuperating from minor surgery.

Apparently Boyd soon heard from the White House. In a few hours his labor specialist, John Grimes, was taking soundings from the Machinists. They were not pleasant. And Boyd could not reach Siemiller. No private apologies were going to be accepted. So the next day the Secretary of Transportation -- having learned the facts of life --said publicly:

"I regret those remarks. In the midst of a tense situation I made, in response to questions from reporters yesterday, some remarks concerning Mr. Siemiller, president of the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM). I do not deal in personalities and regret those remarks."

But that did not end it. The past is just prelude. There is no area of transportation on land, sea or sky, or outer space in which Boyd's department will not have to deal with Siemiller's union. The IAM is not only on the rails, but in airlines, autos, buses, trucking, etc. From now on he is their primary target.

He himself was ill-advised. He should have known that the operational headed of the Machinists' negotiating and strike committees is IAM vice-president Joe Ramsey. He must retire on July 23rd, his 65th birthday. Saturday night the union gave him his going away party. After July 23rd, Siemiller takes over the active direction of the Machinists' transportation division. And so the feud is on.

This is no minor matter on the political as well as the industrial front.

The Machinists have a Non-Partisan Political League. It is based on their 1900 lodges in almost as many cities reaching all the way from Seattle to Miami. It is influential. And it has a long Congressional purge list set for the next national election.

They are charging the Congress with strikebreaking. And they will try to smash the political careers of those around whose political necks they have hung what they call this "albatross."

KITCHEN KNIVES

A few well designed well constructed knives can, with proper care, make a world of difference in the length of time and the efficiency it takes to do a job.

The basic equipment should consists of a 3-inch paring knife for peeling vegetables or trimming meat away from the home.

An 8-inch roast slicer is best for cold processed meats, cheeses, roasts, and steak, and for such fruits as melons and citrus.

An 8-inch French knife is preferred for chopping, mincing, and shredding carrots, green peppers, celery, onions, green beans, and cabbage.

A 9-inch bread and cake knife will prevent crumbling of bakery goods.

Each knife should be chosen to fit your hand so it won't slip or slide in cutting.

Always cut food on a wooden board. This provides better safety for the knife edge and the user, and helps to prevent dullness.

Use knives only for the purpose for which they were designed, never for cutting bones, metal, string, or paper.

Store knives separately so that cutting edges will not become dulled by knocking against each other. Never drop knives loosely into a drawer - it's dangerous and quickly dulls the edge.

Rinse, wash, and dry knives immediately after use. Never soak. When hand washing, hold the handle out of the water, washing down the blade. Don't use scouring powders on the edge of blades.

"Don't wash knives in an automatic dishwasher unless heat and moisture resistant handles are specified by the manufacturer.

Never heat knife in a flame-the heat will destroy the temper of the metal.

Milk Products Contribute to Nutrition

By Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
Extension Home Economists
University Extension Cente

KENNETT -- This month the foods program has emphasis focused on milk products as it is Dairy Month. Dairy products are often hidden in our favorite foods and labeled milk, cheese, ice cream, etc. These foods contribute much toward good nutrition in our diets.

Did you know?

1 cup whole milk - Over 1/6 daily protein needs for a woman

1 cup whole milk - About 1/7 daily protein requirement for men

1 cup whole milk - 350 International Units Vitamin A

All adults need 5000 Units per day.

Did you know?

Milk is almost a perfect food but it is low in Vitanmin C and iron. Did you know that skimed milk is higher in protein than whole milk? Since the fat is removed; the skim milk replaces it.

One whole carrot supplies (5-1/2 x 1 inch size) 5500 International Units Vitamin A. An inch cube of Cheddar or American Cheese supplies 220 Units of Vitanmin A which is 1/15th of needed daily requirement of calcium. You realize immediately dairy foods supply necessary nutrients as thiamine, riboflavin, and niacin. The latter are 13 vitamins which are known to influence the healthfulness of our nervous systems.

The calcium milk products contain is needed by all people for healthy hair, nails, teeth, and in the regulation of tissue and blood building.

Non-fat dry milk and evaporated milk are shelf products the homemaker can rely on in times of emergencies or between market trips. These products are economical in price. The non-fat dry milk lacks the Vitamin A; the fat soluble vitamin, and usually Vitamin D.

Use milk shakes, malts, homemade custards, cream soups, and another way to use non-fat dry milk is to whip it into potatoes and cooked cereals. Milk satisfies and wards off hunger.

The sherbets and ice creams contain some milk. This depends on the quality of the dessert. These desserts have added calories. We can not reliable depend upon ice cream to supply the nutrients whole milk does in the diet.

The comparison of nutrients in this article were compiled from Home and Garden Bulletin, No. 72 "Nutritive Values of Foods." Homemakers who are using this bulletin in planning meals can adequately meet the daily requirements.

After the honoree opened her gifts, punch, coffee, sandwiches and cookies were served.

Miss Rister was honored at a miscellaneous shower April 22 in the community room of Security National Bank. Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. Louis Bolden and Mrs. George Springs.

Miss Rister was presented a corsage of yellow rose buds. The bride's chosen colors were used in decorations.

After gifts were opened, punch, coffee and cake inscribed with the couple's names were served.

After weeks of discouragement in trying to locate a job, I heard of an opening at a lumber mill, applied and was hired. It took the better part of a day to fill out various forms, take a physical examination and learn about the type of work I was to do. I went home tired, but exhilarated by the fact that I would be starting to work the next evening -- that is, until I turned on the radio for the local news. Then I heard the announcement that I was on strike!

Cards Take Lead On 4-Hitter By Hughes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Hughes pitched four-hit Ball and Orlando Cepeda smacked a two-run homer in the eighth inning Sunday to lift St. Louis to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The victory gave the Cards a slim hold on first place in the National League by a few percentage points.

At San Francisco the Cardinals scored in the first inning on singles by Roger Maris, Cepeda and Tim McCarver.

The Giants tied it in the sixth when Tom Haller led off with a bloop double, went to third on a ball by Hughes, and scored on Jim Hart's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth, Maris walked and Cepeda followed with his homer over the left field fence.

The Cards picked up an insurance run in the ninth on Bob Tolan's single.

A Father's Day crowd of 38,280 watched as Hughes brought his record to 6-2. Gaylord Perry was the loser.

Danny Cater, Ramon Webster and Campy Campaneris each had two hits. Cater drove in two runs with a triple and a double.

It was the first loss for the Tigers Joe Sparma whose record is now 6 and 1. Hunter boosted his victory string to seven games against four losses.

Cash was the biggest problem for Hunter as he followed up his wind-blow single with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Hunter got the first two men to face him in the ninth then, filled the bases on a walk, a single and a bunt single. When Don Wert followed with a single, A's Manager Alvin Dark sent in Tony Pierce and moved Hunter to first.

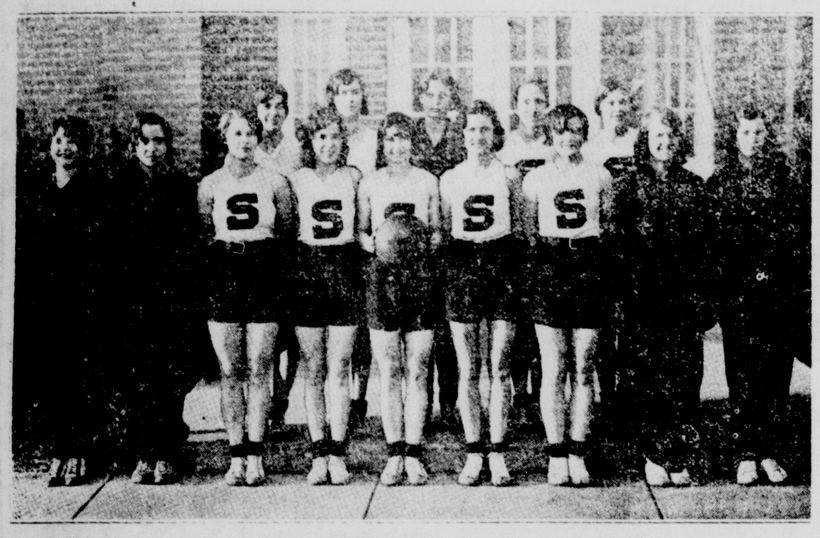

Pierce struck out Brown to end the game.

Dark made the move to have a lefthander work against Brown and have Hunter available to pitch to Al Kaline, if necessary. Hunter played first base in high school.

The A's meet the Indians in Cleveland in a twi-night double header. Lew Krausse and Chuck Dobson are scheduled to start for the A's and Sonny Siebert and Steve Hargan for Cleveland.

St. Louis goes to Houston with Bob Gibson campaigning for his ninth victory against Mike Cuellar.

Carolina 500 To Richard Petty

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — There isn't much left for stock car race driver Richard Petty to do but win more money and set more records for others to shoot at.

Petty, 29-year-old son of former driving great Lee Petty, took the Carolina 500-mile race Sunday and now has won on all of the South's five super speedways except the one at Charlotte. And even there, he crossed the finish line at the head of the pack one time—as a relief driver.

He has won 59 times in NASCAR's Grand National Division, more than any other driver in history, since beginning his career under his father's tutelage in 1959.

This year he has won 11 times, nine in his last 15 starts, and has banked $59,440 in official earnings to bring his career total well above the $300,000 mark. Every dollar of it has been won in Plymouth race cars.

"It's not so much a thrill to win now," he said after beating Dodge's Buddy Baker by more than a lap in Sunday's chase of more than 4½ hours over the mile-long North Carolina Motor Speedway. "But the money spends just as well."

Petty, a curly haired, 6-foot-5 200-pounder, pocketed $16,125 in this one.

Fisk Forfeits To Dexter

DEXTER -- Fisk forfeited its Connie Mack baseball game Saturday to Dexter.

Fisk came up short of players.

Poplar Bluff is scheduled to meet Fisk in a doubleheader tonight starting at 8 p.m.

Thursday Dexter travels to Poplar Bluff for a pair of games.

I arrived at the airport in the middle of a sudden downpour. With no raincoat or umbrella, I wondered where I was going to park in the crowded lot, and how I was going to get to the terminal in time for my plane without getting soaked. Then an idea came to me. I drove up to the terminal entrance and picked out a man who looked ready to make a dash for the lot.

"Would you like a ride?" I offered. "I'll take you to your car if you'll drive me back here in yours."

With an amazed and grateful expression on his face, the man quickly got in. Three problems were neatly solved: I got his parking place, I didn't get soaked, he didn't get soaked.

FRANCORCHAMPS, Belgium (AP) — Dan Gurney captured the Grand Prix auto race of Belgium Sunday, becoming the first American in an American-made car ever to win a Grand Prix that counts toward the world championship.

Gurney, 36, of Costa, Mesa, Calif., driving an American-Eagle he designed and built, beat Jackie Stewart of Britain in a BRM by 63 seconds, competing the 244.776-mile test in one hour, 40 minutes, 49.4 seconds. His average speed was 145.665 miles per hour in sunny weather.

When Stanford University officials apologized to a male freshman for an error that assigned him to a women's dormitory, he stated, "I am willing to live wherever the university wishes."

No-Hitter To Astro Hurler

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Wilson won't mind passing up another breakfast. . .if it means more champagne before dinner.

Wilson, a 22-year-old Houston rookie, pitched an overpowering, 2-0 no-hitter — first in the National League since 1965 — against the usually potent Atlanta Braves Sunday.

The 6-foot-3 right-hander walked three Braves, but struck out 15 — including five of the last six he faced — in hurling the first no-hitter in the Astrodome. And he did it all on an empty stomach.

"I didn't change one thing today," he said between sips of the bubbly in the chaotic Astros' clubhouse. "Oh, yes, there was one thing. My wife didn't cook breakfast for me. She wasn't feeling good."

Would he skip breakfast before his next start?

"I'll try it one more time and see what happens."

Los Angeles cuffed the Reds 5-3, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs split a double-header with the New York Mets, winning 4-3 after losing by the same score in 10 innings.

The American League-leading Chicago White Sox swept a pair from the New York Yankees 7-3 and 4-0, Washington edged Boston 3-2 in 10 innings, California topped Baltimore 5-3, and Minnesota downed Cleveland 4-2.

Wilson, who got a saving assist from third baseman Bob Aspromonte in the sixth inning, walked Denis Menke leading off the eighth, then struck out pinch hitters Rico Carty, Charles Lau and Clete Boyer.

In the ninth, Felipe Alou fouled out to Aspromonte, Tito Francona fanned — and slugging Hank Aaron stood between Wilson and the champagne.

"I consider him one of the best clutchers in the game," Wilson said later.

"I checked the scoreboard to see who they had coming up. I didn't want to face Aaron, but after I walked Menke in the eighth, I knew I'd have to."

Aaron ran the count to 3-2, fouled off the next pitch and then went down swinging.

"He just threw it right past me," Aaron said. "This kid threw as hard as anybody we've faced all year.

"He's the kind of guy that makes me want to retire from the game."

The Astros clipped Phil Niekro for their two runs in the fourth on Sonny Jackson's single, Jim Wynn's double, a single by Rusty Staub and an infield out.

Wilson, who came into the game with a 3-3 record, retired the first 14 batters before walking Menke in the fifth.

With two out in the sixth, Aspromonte made a diving stop of Alou's smash to his left, recovered and threw out the runner while still on his knees.

"Aspro made a great throw," Wilson said. "He actually saved the game."

The no-hitter was the first in the NL since Sandy Koufax beat the Cubs with a perfect game on Sept. 9, 1965. Baltimore's Steve Barber and Stu Miller combined for a no-hitter against Detroit on April 30, but the Tigers beat the Orioles 2-1.

Bo Belinsky, now with the Astros, was the last rookie to hurl a no-hitter, accomplishing the feat for the Los Angeles Angels against Baltimore in 1962.

The former Houston pitchers — Don Nottebart and Ken Johnson — pitched no-hitters for the Astros on the road, Nottebart beat the Phillies 4-1 in 1963 but Johnson was beaten by Cincinnati 1-0 the next year.

Harvey Haddix was the last pitcher to stymie the Braves, pitching 12 perfect innings against them in 1959 before losing 1-0 on Joe Adcock's 13th inning double.

Left-hander Claude Osteen weathered Cincinnati 12 hits and stroked a two-run single, helping the Dodgers knock the Reds out of the top spot for the first time since April 27.

Matty Alou collected four hits for the second day in a row, leading the Pirates past Philadelphia. Winning pitcher Tommie Sisk drilled a two-run single in a four-run first inning burst that offset the Phillies' late surge.

Tom Reynolds' leadoff homer in the 10th inning lifted the Mets past Chicago in the opener but the Cubs snapped a 3-3 deadlock in the eighth inning of the nightcap on Lee Thomas' sacrifice fly, following singles by Glenn Beckert and Billy Williams.

NCAA Crown To Arizona St.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ron Davini, fiery little catcher for Arizona State's NCAA baseball champs, was dumbfounded when told he had been voted most outstanding player of the 21st College World Series Sunday night.

"I can't talk, except to say several other guys deserved it more," stammered the 19-year-old sophomore from Anaheim, Calif.

The award was a tribute to Davini's .409 Series hitting and superb fielding. His uniform is always the first to get dirty. His teammates call him "pig pen." He's so excitable, Coach Bobby Winkles had him write "relax" in big letters on the back of his catcher's mitt.

A second NCAA baseball crown in three years, gained with an 11-2 romp over Houston, is a tribute to the coaching and recruiting zeal of Winkles, a 37-year-old former White Sox infielder from Swifton, Ark.

Nine players from his 1966 club signed pro contracts, including Riggie Jackson, now with the Kansas City Athletics.

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Fred Pipin of Hinsdale, Ill., won the 160-mile main event Sunday at the annual June Sprints at the Road America Track. He pushed hs Tero-Chevrolet Mark I at an average speed of 87.859 miles per hour.

Nicklaus' Record 275 Wins U.S. Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — "I felt like an idiot, standing there with a one-iron in my hand," Jack Nicklaus said. "But I knew what I had to do to win this golf tournament."

The bulky Golden Bear, at age 27 perhaps the best golfer the world has seen, was explaining the final moments of his record-shattering triumph in the United States Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

"I wasn't thinking about records," Nicklaus said over and over. "Records come. They're made to be broken. I just wanted to win this tournament."

He did. And—he insists it was entirely incidental—he broke Ben Hogan's 19-year-old Open scoring record of 276 by one stroke with a curling, 23-foot putt on the final hole.

It gave him a final round 65, five under par for the stately old Baltusrol Course, and a 72-hole total of 275, adding the Open scoring record to his Masters mark of 271.

But he was more concerned with adding this second Open title—he won his first in 1962 in his first year as a pro—to his collection of three Masters, a PGA and a British Open crown.

"I had to make a decision on the 18th tee," Nicklaus said. The 18th is a 542-yard, par 5 hole. "I was four strokes ahead and knew I had to beat (Arnold) Palmer to win it.

"Two things were going through my mind. One was what Arnie said last year, that he was thinking about breaking Hogan's record when he had that blow-up in San Francisco.

"The other was that Dick Mayer took a seven on this same hole and lost the Open in 1954.

"Those were the things I was thinking about. I knew the only way Arnie could catch me was for him to get a three and me a seven. So I was shooting for a six or better.

"So I took out a one iron—I felt like an idiot doing it—and aimed it down the right side of the fairway. I was in the rough, on something that looked like a cable. So I got a drop and hit an eight iron back to the fairway."

He reached the green in three "and that's when I knew I had the tournament won."

For all intents and purposes, however, he had it won much earlier, when he reeled off a string of three straight birdies on the third through fifth holes. That gave him a lead he never relinquished.

Palmer, who was tied with Nicklaus and Casper for second going into the final round, finished with a 69 for second place at 279. Playing in the same twosome with Nicklaus, he didn't get a birdie until the 17th, but added another at the 18th.

Casper, the defending champion, was bothered by driving problems and settled for fourth with a 72 for 282, one stroke back of Don January, who had a final round 70.

Marty Fleckman, the 23-year-old amateur from Port Arthur, Tex., who led the third round, blew sky high with an 80 for 289, putting him far, far back in the pack. He started with three bogeys, and also bogeyed six of seven holes on the back nine.

Hogan, 55, seeking his fifth Open title, had a final 72 for 292.

WHEN YOU'RE A DACHSHUND, even a small puddle poses problems, and a real flood makes travel next to impossible. This Dachshund found the water waist deep everywhere he went in Grand Island, Nebr., as floodwaters covered a wide portion of the town.

ANN'S VISIT TO VIET

'Better Than Medicine'

By John Donnelly

Sun-Times columnist Ann Landers has visited thousands of American servicemen in Vietnam. Here is another report on her trip.

Special to The Sun-Times

SAIGON—"She really worked miracles," said Maj. Fred Ritvo of Boston, the Special Services officer of the 93d Evacuation Hospital in Long Binh. "The patients have talked of nothing but Ann Landers since she was here."

"Can you imagine," mused a lieutenant, "she took down the names and telephone numbers of nearly a hundred men in this hospital alone—and I know she's been to five others. She's going to call the wives and mothers and sweethearts all over the country when she gets back to the states."

"Who's going to pay your telephone bill, Annie?" cracked a sergeant. "Oh I think I can handle it." Ann shot back. "When you get right down to it, it's not really as big-hearted as you make it sound. I'm going to get just as much pleasure out of those calls as the women I'll be talking to. Can you imagine what a thrill I'm going to get when I telephone Jess Ledesma's mother out in San Bernardino and Bob Conley's mother in Watkins, Minn., and Don Burrell's mother in Salt Lake City—and say, 'I just saw your son and he's in wonderful shape and he sends his love.' A message like that is going to make those women feel like a million dollars. Making people happy is the greatest fun there is. I'm going to have the time of my life!"

Talked To The Wounded

During her 10 days visit in this war-torn country, Ann Landers talked to almost 2,500 people, most of them wounded and sick GIs. She talked so much, in fact, that on her last day in Vietnam, she confided, in her famous Midwestern twang, typical of her native Iowa, "It's a wonder I've got any pipes left."

"I've never met so many people in such a short period of time," she said, "or for that matter, gotten to know a place so well. I feel as if I've been here for months."

Ann Landers came to Vietnam as a guest of the United States Army. She came to reassure the troops, and ended up being reassured herself.

"I am completely convinced," she said, "that our boys are getting the best and most thorough care. The dedication of the medical people, the physicians, the nurses, the medics, the Red Cross—everyone—is truly magnificent."

Everyone who met Ann agreed she was pretty magnificent herself. "I walked through the wards with her," said a physician at the 85th Evacuation Hospital in Qui Nhon. "I listened to her talk to the men. That woman has an incredible gift for saying exactly the right thing to everybody. She can talk medicine or psychiatry with experts and use the correct terms and she can hang right in there with a kid from Columbus with bop talk."

There She Was, At His Bed

It was the same story wherever she went. "She's better than medicine," said a malaria patient. "I was feeling miserable. Chills and the works. Then I heard someone say, 'Ann Landers is in the ward.' I thought I was dreaming but when I looked up there she was standing by my bed. She put her hand on my face and patted it just like she was my mother or something. She said, 'How you doing, fella?' All I could think of was I got to get her autograph. My wife will never believe this.'"

"I've never seen anything like her," said an administrative officer. "Most celebrities who come here, walk through a couple of wards, get their pictures taken and leave. This woman has visited every single patient. It's almost 11 at night and I know she's been on her feet since this morning. Where in the world does that little woman get all the energy?"

"That little woman is a human dynamo. She is a shade under 5 feet 2, weighs 110 pounds and has the figure of a girl. She has already worn out her escort officer, Maj. William Hart," said a Red Cross worker.

"How DO you keep going?" asked Michael Rosenberg, an anesthetist from Detroit. "I keep going the same way YOU keep going," she replied. "When you are around people who are giving as much as these fellows are giving, how on earth could you do less?"

Keeps Her Sense Of Humor

Ann's sense of humor never deserted her during her grueling ordeal of visiting the sick and wounded. When a young corporal from Wyoming asked her to lean a little closer so he could smell her perfume, she asked, "How long has it been since you've smelled perfume, fella?"

"Ten and a half months," the corporal answered.

"That's all for you, brother," Ann quipped. "You could be dangerous."

At 11:05, after Ann had seen the last patient in the last ward, the executive officer of the hospital suggested that she come into his office and take off her shoes. "I wouldn't dare," Ann replied. "I'd never get them back on."

Dr. Michael Rosenberg (left) of Detroit and Dr. John Payne of Idaho Falls, Ida., stop to chat with Ann Landers before returning to surgery at the 85th Evacuation Hospital. "How do you keep going?" asked Dr. Rosenberg of the indefatigable ward-touring Miss Landers. "I keep going the same way you keep going," she replied.

Shop Selling Marijuana Accessories Within Law

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading you for years and I thought I had heard everything, but I ran across a news item in the paper today that is more fantastic than anything I have ever read in your column.

Here in Santa Barbara a new place of business has opened. It is called The Psychodelic Shop. They sell accessories for smoking marijuana, pot pipes, "roach" (cigaret papers) and toys to amuse people while on LSD trips. They also offer paintings, jewelry and drawings by young artists and far-out phallic sculpture.

The police chief insists he cannot close the shop because there is no law against it. He also said, "We can't shut down a place of business just because some people don't like it."

As a courageous crusader who has always upheld high moral standards, will you please say something about authorities who hide behind the law to permit such an establishment to operate?
---SANTA BARBARA CITIZEN

Dear Santa: I can't see that anybody is hiding behind anything. The police chief stated that he is unable to make an arrest because no law has been broken. If the shop sold marijuana or LSD the chief could and would padlock it at once, but selling accessories is not against the law.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is a belated thank you. Three years ago my wife sent for your booklet on alcoholism. She was no drinker but I was. That booklet lay on the dresser for three months and finally one night I decided to read it even though I was not ready to admit I had a drinking problem.

Reading your booklet was the first step toward ending a living hell. I recognized myself in those pages and finally had to admit I was an alcoholic. Here are a few things I don't have to worry about anymore:

(1) My wife leaving me.
(2) Excuses for being away from work.
(3) Excuses for being too "sick" to go places.
(4) What to say to bill collectors when they come to the house and I can't pay because I am broke.
(5) Where did I leave the car last night?
(6) How did I get home?
(7) Did I say anything in front of the kids that I ought to be ashamed of?

I could go on for pages, but I think you have the idea. Your booklet made me go to Alcoholics Anonymous, and there I found the help I needed. I know now the only difference between a drunk in a penthouse and a drunk in the gutter is the height that separates them. -- THANKFUL

Dear Thankful: So am I. I appreciate your letter more than I can say.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you told a wife whose husband was interested in wife swapping -- "sure, people get curious, and sometimes it doesn't take them 20 years, but curiosity is no excuse for behaving like animals."

On behalf of such animals as lions, Canadian geese, otters, cardinals and almost any type except cowbirds, I object. Tney wouldn't dream of such behavior! I was sure you knew better. -- TORONTO EDITOR

Dear Editor: My apologies to the lions, Canadian geese, otters, cardinals and all others whom I offended by lumping them with humans. You are right. I should have known better.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

During the war my father hitched a ride on a Navy plane. Snow, mixed with freezing rain, was coming down.

"I hope you have good deicing equipment," my father said to the pilot.

"Oh, yes," the pilot reassured him. "We have the very latest."

Thank goodness!" said my father.

"Yes," the pilot continued, pointing to a pile of boxes in the back of the plane. "I'm on my way to a Naval air station in Rhode Island to have it installed."

125,000-Bale Cotton Crop No Burden

HAYTI -- This year's cotton crop probably will be around 125,000 bales in Missouri, Fred Mullins, assistant officer in charge of the department of agriculture's classing office.

Production is not expected to tax the facilities of the new classing office, under construction, which has adequate storage space to handle an average crop.

In 1945 production was nearer average -- 392,000 bales.

Last year's crop was 163,000 bales.

"The reason for the decline the last two years is the new federal law controlling cotton production coupled with bad weather, which caused a late planting," Mullins said.

"Because of the federal ruling offering payment for land left idle," Mullins said, "acreage planted in cotton will be down about 25 per cent from last year."

Other estimates are that the 1967 Missouri cotton production will be around 20 per cent of a normal crop.

The cotton classing office is the only one in Missouri. It offers its services to farmers free of charge.

The office takes samples of the farmer's cotton and grades it. The grade provides the basis for determining the value of the cotton on both the market and in federal loans.

The office provides a news service for the farmers concerning cotton conditions in the area and on the market.

"More than 99 per cent of all the cotton produced in Missouri is classed here," Mullins said.

Considerable cotton acreage lost due to the adverse weather conditions during the planting season in Southeast Missouri is being replanted with soybeans, since it is now too late in Missouri to replant cotton. Under a special regulation, farmers can plow up abandoned cotton and replant with the beans without loss of federal farm program payments. This is the second consecutive year that this situation has occurred.

The new building is scheduled for completion July 1.

Costing $163,000, the new structure is being built by Kemp Whisenhunt of Blytheville, Ark., who has executed a five-year lease for its use by the USDA.

The new building on Highway 84, on the east side of Hayti, will have 35 per cent more usable space than the old office with most of this space being used for laboratory work and storage.

"In the past all of the cotton samples couldn't be stored in the classing office, but this will not be the case this year.

Job Tensions Not Smoke Killed Poor Old Charley

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE FALLEN SMOKER

Charley was a hard-working attorney for a public agency. While most public employees can handle the gaff, handling the work fell upon poor old Charley. In fact, he became so overwhelmed with what he had to do and became so burdened by the tensions and pressures of his job that he increased his smoking habit to such a rate that it was near impossible to find him in his smoke filled room. When they did find poor old Charley, he was dead. His heavy smoking has ruined his oxygen tanks and he died of lung cancer.

Shortly therefore, Charley's widow filed a claim for death benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Law, only to be turned down.

"Sorry," she was told, "but Charley died because he smoked too much and not because of his job."

"He smoked too much because of the pressures and tensions of his employment," retorted the tenatious widow. "His job killed him as sure as I stand here."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Charley's widow to collect death benefits for the fallen smoker?

This is how the judge ruled: He sided with the widow. In doing so, he held that since it was credible that Charley increased his smoking habit because of his heavy work load and the pressures and tensions of his job, and since his heavy smoking was a contributing factor in the development of the lung cancer, his death arose out of his employment so as to entitle his widow to death benefits.

Bernie Girl Wins National Award

Elaine Stanfield

BERNIE -- Elaine Stanfield, president of the Bernie high school Future Business Leaders of America, placed second in the Miss Future Business Leader competition at the National Future Business Leaders of America convention in San Francisco, Calif.

The Future Business Leaders of America is a national organization for high school business students.

There were 30 candidates competing for the title of Miss Future Business Leader.

Miss Stanfield represented Missouri. She won the district title at the FBLA convention in Sikeston March 11 and was named Miss Future Business Leader of Missouri at the state convention in St. Louis May 5-6.

State winners competing for the title took a general information test. From this group, the top 15 according to test scores, were selected to be interviewed. Each of the top candidates was interviewed by businessmen and employment representatives from the San Francisco area. Personal appearance, conduct during interview, evidence of skills in and knowledge of office procedures, evidence of career planning and evidence of initiative, forcefulness and leadership qualities were the basis for rating.

After the interviews, the field was narrowed to 10 candidates. The top 10 were presented with certificates of the national awards banquet.

In addition to an eight by 10-inch certificate, Miss Stanfield received an engraved medal for placing second in the nation.

The top 10 in the Miss Future Business Leader event represented Oklahoma, Missouri, Illinois, New Mexico, Ohio, Texas, Arkansas, North Carolina, Oregon and Kansas.

Missourians Agree on Value of Reading

JEFFERSON CITY -- A survey of public opinion about libraries, conducted by the Missouri State Library in news media around the state, has revealed facts about library users.

Out of more than 4,000 questionnaires returned, 58 per cent came from persons in the 30-50 age group. The largest single group of library users replying were in the $3,000-$6,000 income bracket.

Fourteen percent of respondents said they never used library service and 23 per cent had not visited a library in a year or more.

Yet 42 per cent said they agreed that "one should read widely to keep fully informed." Library service in Missouri is widely available in the areas studied as indicated by the fact that 92 per cent had libraries in or near their towns. Largest decreasing percentages for nonfiction, children's books, newspapers, magazines, films and art reproductions.

In appraising the study Charles O'Halloran, state librarian, said, "While some of the replies tend to verify previously known facts about library usage, a survey of thid kind -- conducted through media rather than through the library itself -- presents a current and objective picture of how, and the extent to which, people are using public libraries in Missouri. It helps to reveal who today's library users are and what their needs are. This sort of information helps us keep libraries in gear with current values and needs."

Under the Missouri Library Assocation's theme, "Only FREE People May Read FREELY," readers will be urged to enjoy the rare privilege Americans have of free access to reading material on all subjects -- a guarantee of our free society -- which many accept but to not always use to advantage.

Flood Threat Goes on

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sandbagging crews were out all along the Missouri River today seeking to shore up levees threatened by the extended run of high water down the Big Muddy.

High water still covered Corning, a town of 130 persons in northwest Holt County, about 25 miles south of the Iowa line.

Women and children were moved out, but most of the men remained to keep an eye on the situation. A levee near the town broke Saturday, causing a big rush of water into the town.

To the south, an area around Big Lake Park was flooded.

The secondary crest coming down the Missouri sent the river stage at St. Joseph to 21.7 feet, a rise of a foot and a half in the past 24 hours.

There was little change in the stage at Boonville and Jefferson City.

Warden Harold R. Swenson of the Missouri State Penitentiary said he had five 15-man crews out sandbagging levees in the Hartsburg area. He said in some spots the sandbags were holding off up to 18 inches of water and little seepage was reported so far.

The Coast Guard banned boat traffic from Waverly to the river's mouth, a step taken to prevent waves from spilling over the tops of levees.

U.S. 24 still was closed five miles south of Carrollton and just west of Brunswick. U.S. 65 was closed south of Carrollton.

Heated Remap Issue Again Comes up for House Action

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A fight over congressional redistricting resumed in the Missouri House today.

Last week Republicans, Negroes and a group of dissident Democrats went all out for the Senate version of redistricting and staved off all amendments.

Pending when the House reconvened today was an amendment by Rep. Earl L. Sponsler, D-Cabool, designed to add Democratic strength to the 8th District, now represented by Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Houston.

Under the Senate plan, both the 8th and the 6th of northwestern Missouri could become swing districts.

Some rural Democrats gathered early today in an effort to agree on a last ditch maneuver against the Senate version.

Members were slow to arrive and even the man who called the caucus, Rep. Ruben Schapeler, D-Butler, said he wasn't sure they could come up with a winning substitute in time.

Few changes were made in the operational budgets of state agencies.

Goldwater Praises Service of Colonel

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Barry M. Goldwater, Republican candidate for President in 1964, gave the address and officiated in a ceremony at which a memorial to a World War II hero from Caruthersville, Col. John B. England, was dedicated in the City Park Saturday. England and Goldwater, both in the air force, were friends.

England was Missouri's leading ace in Europe, accounting for 19 enemy planes shot down. He also served in the Korean war. He was killed in France Nov. 17, 1954, while on temporary duty from Alexandria Air Force Base, La.

The memorial includes a T-33 jet trainer airplane, given by the air force, mounted on a base bearing a plaque citing England's military service record. He was born in Caruthersville.

In his address, Goldwater lauded England as an example of young American manhood, who respect their country and its flag, and who are willing to fight and die for freedom. He declared that these, fortunately, are in the majority as compared with "those idiotic young men who burn their draft cards and show disrespect for the flag."

Referring to the Vietnam war, he was applauded when he stated that "England's policy was to win -- not turn tail and come home." His remarks left no doubt that he is opposed to the way the war has been conducted in Vietnam and that the United States should begin fighting to win.

Present at the ceremony were England's widow, Marilyn, since re-married, and his three children, Bruce, Carole and Barry, who was named for Goldwater.

The former Senator from Arizona flew in his private plane to the SAC base at Blytheville, Ark., and was escorted to Caruthersville by leading citizens and base air force officers. After the ceremony he returned to the base and took off for Washington, D.C., where he planned to land before the night.

In coming to Caruthersville, Goldwater entered a Missouri Democratic stronghold. Democratic leaders were on the speaking stand with him, such as State Sen. J. F. Patterson, Pemiscot Representative Charles W. Foley, and others. Jack Hutchison of Caruthersvile made the introductions.

The only mention of a political nature in the proceedings was Hutchison's statement in introducing Goldwater that "there are many people who say he should have been elected President." This remark received the loudest applause from the audience. Rain fell before the ceremony.

Hendrix told the highway patrol that the car accelerator stuck and he pushed what he thought was the neutral button on his push-button drive transmission but hit the wrong one.

The car went out of control, ran off the road, into a ditch and across a field. The car circled and headed back to the road as Hendrix jumped out. The car then went into another field, circled around, came back on the highway and stopped a quarter of a mile down the road.

Hendrix was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Two East Prairians were injured in a one-car accident when their pickup truck went out of control and overturned on Route A, two miles west of Dorena at 5:45 a.m. Saturday.

Two Sikeston women were injured when Carolyn Sue Huff, 25, lost control of her speeding car, which hit a utility pole and caught fire, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday on Route Z, nine miles north of Sikeston, troopers said.

The driver sustained forehead cuts, and a passenger, Geniece Lathum, 26, suffered a concussion. Both were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The driver was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Johnson Lists Points For Mideast Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson declared today that "certainly troops must be withdrawn" from conquered territory in the wartorn Middle East but firmly linked the pullback to negotiations of a general Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

In a major statement of U.S. policy, the President dealt with the withdrawal of Israeli forces from captured Arab territory as a matter for negotiation along with the problem of Arab refugees, freedom of passage through international waterways, Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist and a limitation on the Middle East arms race.

"Certainly troops must be withdrawn, but there must also be recognized rights of national life—progress in solving the refugee problem—freedom of innocent maritime passage—limitation of the arms race—and respect for political independence and territorial integrity," Johnson said.

The President added that a simple withdrawal of Israeli forces would "not be a prescription for peace but for renewed hostilities," unless accompanied by negotiations for a general peace settlement in the area.

Johnson spoke to a foreign policy conference of educators at the State Department. But his policy statement was set in the context of global debate with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who spoke at a special U.N. General Assembly session in New York an hour later.

Johnson, laying down "five great principles of peace" for the Middle East, appealed to the nations there to shun another arms race, abandon "a diet of hate" and strive for a settlement.

"The world is watching," he said for the peace of the world is at stake."

The President's statement generally appeared to support what is understood here to be an Israeli position on troop withdrawals: That is, any agreement to withdraw Israeli troops from Egypt, Jordan or Syria should be linked to issues of vital interest to Israel, notably Arab recognition.

Johnson for the most part was careful not to name specific countries, but it was clear he was speaking of Egypt when he referred to the closing of the Straits of Tiran—an action announced by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser about two weeks before the fighting started.

"If a single act of folly was more responsible for this explosion (the recent war) than any other," Johnson said, "it was the arbitrary and dangerous announced decision that the Straits of Tiran would be closed."

Johnson, saying Israel and and Arab states must be the peacemakers, promised U.S. support for peace measures both through the United Nations and through methods.

"I offer assurance to all, the President said, "that the government of the United States will do its part for peace, in every form, and at every level and at every hour.

Evidently with a view to the Soviet-American confrontation—dramatized by Johnson's and Kosygin's personal declarations—the President referred to his efforts to improve relations with Moscow.

He spoke of cultural exchanges and similar agreements such as space treaty, and urged agreements to block the spread of nuclear weapons and prevent an antiballistic missile arms race.

"We have tried to enlarge, and have made great progress in enlarging the arena of common action with the Soviet Union," Johnson said.

His personal appeal for "common action" with Moscow tackling the Middle East problems led into his statement on that crisis area.

It was in this statement that he outlined a set of five principles for a "durable peace" and then dealt specifically with the hottest current issue posed by the Arab states and the Soviets—withdrawal of Israeli troops from conquered territory.

"There are some who have urged, as a single, simple solution, an immediate return to the situation as it was on June 4," Johnson said. The war started on June 5 and in the next week Israel overran sections of Egypt, Jordan and Syria which it holds under the present ceasefire.

The President's speech was prepared for a meeting of 800 U.S. educators at the State Department.

Blame Pinned On U.S

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin demanded today that Israel withdraw from all occupied areas in the Arab nations so that a climate might be created for peace in the Middle East.

The Soviet leader, addressing a special emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly, accused the United States of encouraging Israel to make war on the Arabs. He warned that renewed conflict in the Middle East could lead to nuclear war.

Kosygin spoke only an hour after President Johnson, in a major policy statement in Washington, called on the United Nations to shun rigid attitudes in the search for Middle East stability.

Kosygin attacked U.S. foreign policy in virtually all areas of tension in the world, from Vietnam to Cuba but reserved his iciest blasts for U.S. and British roles in the drama of Israel's swift victory over the Arabs early this month.

"The aggressor (Israel) is in a state of military intoxication," Kosygin insisted.

Kosygin issued a "categorical demand" that all Israeli forces be withdrawn from the Suez Canal zone and all other occupied territories, so that a climate might be created for establishing peace in the Middle East.

"Only the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the seized territories may change the situation in favor of detente and the creation of conditions for peace in the Middle East," Kosygin said.

He said the Soviet Union "will undertake all measures within its power both in the United Nations and outside this organization in order to achieve the elimination of the consequences of aggression and promote the establishment of a lasting peace in the region."

He said the world was watching to see whether the United Nations "would be able to give a due rebuff to the aggressor."

"No nation wants war," Kosygin said. "Nobody doubts that if a new world war started, it would inevitably be a nuclear one."

The Soviet leader said, "It should be taken into account that the continuing war in this area (Vietnam) is fraught with the terrible danger of escalating into a major military clash between the powers.

"As long as Israeli troops continue to occupy territories seized by them and urgent measures are not taken to eliminate the consequences of aggression, a military conflict can flare up at any moment," Kosygin said. "That is why the Soviet Union took the initiative to convene an urgent meeting of the members of the United Nations General Assembly."

Heated Remap Issue Again Comes up for House Action

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A fight over congressional redistricting resumed in the Missouri House today.

Last week Republicans, Negroes and a group of dissident Democrats went all out for the Senate version of redistricting and staved off all amendments.

Pending when the House reconvened today was an amendment by Rep. Earl L. Sponsler, D-Cabool, designed to add Democratic strength to the 8th District, now represented by Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Houston.

Under the Senate plan, both the 8th and the 6th of northwestern Missouri could become swing districts.

Some rural Democrats gathered early today in an effort to agree on a last ditch maneuver against the Senate version.

Members were slow to arrive and even the man who called the caucus, Rep. Ruben Schapeler, D-Butler, said he wasn't sure they could come up with a winning substitute in time.

Few changes were made in the operational budgets of state agencies.

Johnson Lists Points For Mideast Peace

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson declared today that "certainly troops must be withdrawn" from conquered territory in the wartorn Middle East but firmly linked the pullback to negotiations of a general Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

In a major statement of U.S. policy, the President dealt with the withdrawal of Israeli forces from captured Arab territory as a matter for negotiation along with the problem of Arab refugees, freedom of passage through international waterways, Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist and a limitation on the Middle East arms race.

"Certainly troops must be withdrawn, but there must also be recognized rights of national life—progress in solving the refugee problem—freedom of innocent maritime passage—limitation of the arms race—and respect for political independence and territorial integrity," Johnson said.

The President added that a simple withdrawal of Israeli forces would "not be a prescription for peace but for renewed hostilities," unless accompanied by negotiations for a general peace settlement in the area.

Johnson spoke to a foreign policy conference of educators at the State Department. But his policy statement was set in the context of global debate with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who spoke at a special U.N. General Assembly session in New York an hour later.

Johnson, laying down "five great principles of peace" for the Middle East, appealed to the nations there to shun another arms race, abandon "a diet of hate" and strive for a settlement.

"The world is watching," he said for the peace of the world is at stake."

The President's statement generally appeared to support what is understood here to be an Israeli position on troop withdrawals: That is, any agreement to withdraw Israeli troops from Egypt, Jordan or Syria should be linked to issues of vital interest to Israel, notably Arab recognition.

Johnson for the most part was careful not to name specific countries, but it was clear he was speaking of Egypt when he referred to the closing of the Straits of Tiran—an action announced by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser about two weeks before the fighting started.

"If a single act of folly was more responsible for this explosion (the recent war) than any other," Johnson said, "it was the arbitrary and dangerous announced decision that the Straits of Tiran would be closed."

Johnson, saying Israel and and Arab states must be the peacemakers, promised U.S. support for peace measures both through the United Nations and through methods.

"I offer assurance to all, the President said, "that the government of the United States will do its part for peace, in every form, and at every level and at every hour.

Evidently with a view to the Soviet-American confrontation—dramatized by Johnson's and Kosygin's personal declarations—the President referred to his efforts to improve relations with Moscow.

He spoke of cultural exchanges and similar agreements such as space treaty, and urged agreements to block the spread of nuclear weapons and prevent an antiballistic missile arms race.

"We have tried to enlarge, and have made great progress in enlarging the arena of common action with the Soviet Union," Johnson said.

His personal appeal for "common action" with Moscow tackling the Middle East problems led into his statement on that crisis area.

It was in this statement that he outlined a set of five principles for a "durable peace" and then dealt specifically with the hottest current issue posed by the Arab states and the Soviets—withdrawal of Israeli troops from conquered territory.

"There are some who have urged, as a single, simple solution, an immediate return to the situation as it was on June 4," Johnson said. The war started on June 5 and in the next week Israel overran sections of Egypt, Jordan and Syria which it holds under the present ceasefire.

The President's speech was prepared for a meeting of 800 U.S. educators at the State Department.

Blame Pinned On U.S

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin demanded today that Israel withdraw from all occupied areas in the Arab nations so that a climate might be created for peace in the Middle East.

The Soviet leader, addressing a special emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly, accused the United States of encouraging Israel to make war on the Arabs. He warned that renewed conflict in the Middle East could lead to nuclear war.

Kosygin spoke only an hour after President Johnson, in a major policy statement in Washington, called on the United Nations to shun rigid attitudes in the search for Middle East stability.

Kosygin attacked U.S. foreign policy in virtually all areas of tension in the world, from Vietnam to Cuba but reserved his iciest blasts for U.S. and British roles in the drama of Israel's swift victory over the Arabs early this month.

"The aggressor (Israel) is in a state of military intoxication," Kosygin insisted.

Kosygin issued a "categorical demand" that all Israeli forces be withdrawn from the Suez Canal zone and all other occupied territories, so that a climate might be created for establishing peace in the Middle East.

"Only the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the seized territories may change the situation in favor of detente and the creation of conditions for peace in the Middle East," Kosygin said.

He said the Soviet Union "will undertake all measures within its power both in the United Nations and outside this organization in order to achieve the elimination of the consequences of aggression and promote the establishment of a lasting peace in the region."

He said the world was watching to see whether the United Nations "would be able to give a due rebuff to the aggressor."

"No nation wants war," Kosygin said. "Nobody doubts that if a new world war started, it would inevitably be a nuclear one."

The Soviet leader said, "It should be taken into account that the continuing war in this area (Vietnam) is fraught with the terrible danger of escalating into a major military clash between the powers.

"As long as Israeli troops continue to occupy territories seized by them and urgent measures are not taken to eliminate the consequences of aggression, a military conflict can flare up at any moment," Kosygin said. "That is why the Soviet Union took the initiative to convene an urgent meeting of the members of the United Nations General Assembly."

Goldwater Praises Service of Colonel

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Barry M. Goldwater, Republican candidate for President in 1964, gave the address and officiated in a ceremony at which a memorial to a World War II hero from Caruthersville, Col. John B. England, was dedicated in the City Park Saturday. England and Goldwater, both in the air force, were friends.

England was Missouri's leading ace in Europe, accounting for 19 enemy planes shot down. He also served in the Korean war. He was killed in France Nov. 17, 1954, while on temporary duty from Alexandria Air Force Base, La.

The memorial includes a T-33 jet trainer airplane, given by the air force, mounted on a base bearing a plaque citing England's military service record. He was born in Caruthersville.

In his address, Goldwater lauded England as an example of young American manhood, who respect their country and its flag, and who are willing to fight and die for freedom. He declared that these, fortunately, are in the majority as compared with "those idiotic young men who burn their draft cards and show disrespect for the flag."

Referring to the Vietnam war, he was applauded when he stated that "England's policy was to win -- not turn tail and come home." His remarks left no doubt that he is opposed to the way the war has been conducted in Vietnam and that the United States should begin fighting to win.

Present at the ceremony were England's widow, Marilyn, since re-married, and his three children, Bruce, Carole and Barry, who was named for Goldwater.

The former Senator from Arizona flew in his private plane to the SAC base at Blytheville, Ark., and was escorted to Caruthersville by leading citizens and base air force officers. After the ceremony he returned to the base and took off for Washington, D.C., where he planned to land before the night.

In coming to Caruthersville, Goldwater entered a Missouri Democratic stronghold. Democratic leaders were on the speaking stand with him, such as State Sen. J. F. Patterson, Pemiscot Representative Charles W. Foley, and others. Jack Hutchison of Caruthersvile made the introductions.

The only mention of a political nature in the proceedings was Hutchison's statement in introducing Goldwater that "there are many people who say he should have been elected President." This remark received the loudest applause from the audience. Rain fell before the ceremony.

Gas Pedal Sticks Driver Leaps Out

Donald Hendrix, 37, sustained scrapes and scratches when he jumped from his car on highway 62, three miles west of Charleston at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Hendrix told the highway patrol that the car accelerator stuck and he pushed what he thought was the neutral button on his push-button drive transmission but hit the wrong one.

The car went out of control, ran off the road, into a ditch and across a field. The car circled and headed back to the road as Hendrix jumped out. The car then went into another field, circled around, came back on the highway and stopped a quarter of a mile down the road.

Hendrix was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Two East Prairians were injured in a one-car accident when their pickup truck went out of control and overturned on Route A, two miles west of Dorena at 5:45 a.m. Saturday.

The driver, Joe Bob True, 25, sustained a fractured pelvis, and a passenger, Shirell True, 30, suffered a broken ankle. Both were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Two Sikeston women were injured when Carolyn Sue Huff, 25, lost control of her speeding car, which hit a utility pole and caught fire, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday on Route Z, nine miles north of Sikeston, troopers said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Some 200 persons will drown this summer in home swimming pools.

Most of the victims will be children. Most will die needlessly.

The home pool has no waves, tides, or motorboats to worry about. Yet, despite certain safety advantages over the lake or shore, pools too often are the sites of unnecessary accidents.

The number of home pool drownings in recent years has risen in proportion to the increasing popularity of backyard pools. Privately owned permanent pools now number nearly half-a-million.

Although pool owners are not charged higher premiums on their homeowners insurance, safety specialists warn that the premium for forgetting vital safety practices may be higher than anyone wants to pay.

A two-year-old boy was riding his tricycle in the backyard as his mother watched him from the living room window. Her attention was diverted by a telephone call. While she talked "two or three minutes" her son rode his shiny red tricycle into the family's swimming pool and drowned.

This tragedy occurred because the boy's family violated the first two rules on this list of 10 "musts" for home pool safety:

1. In-ground pools should be fenced by high vertical wooden slabs with pointed tops or chain link fences with inwardly slanted tops of some sharp material such as barbed wire. Gates to permanent above-ground pools should be kept locked and ladders to plastic above ground pools should be removed when pools are not in use.

2. Watch children closely. Lack of supervision is the largest single cause of toddler's drownings. An occasional glance from a house window is not enough. You must be outside with your child.

3. Under no circumstances should a child who cannot swim be allowed to use inflated toys. Such playthings are not lifesavers but potential killers. They may tempt young swimmers to try feats beyond their ability.

4. Your pool skimmer can be used to fish drowning swimmers out of the pool. Keep it handy at all times, along with a complete first aid kit.

5. Post safety rules, emergency procedures, and first aid instructions on permanent signs near the pool. Keep emergency telephone numbers next to the phone.

6. Bottles, glassware, food, and barbeque equipment should be kept away from poolside - and barefoot swimmers.

7. Construct poolside pavements of roughly textured cement or use an abrasive paint to prevent slippery surfaces.

8. Mark the depth of in-ground pools with permanent paint and divide shallow and deep sections with buoy lines.

9. Be sure the water is deep enough for the height of your diving board. Depth must be a minimum of eight feet for a "low board." For boards 10-16 feet high, the water depth should equal the height of the board.

10. Allow only a professional electrician to install and repair wiring, pumps, and lighting fixtures. Keep portable electrical equipment 10 feet from the pool to reduce the danger of shock.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING

This flap-eared fellow who makes mini-public opinion polls by listening to what people are saying to each other in public places has come in with another report.

Here's what he overhears:

There is no credibility gap between income taxpayers and these know-it-all computers the Internal Revenue Service is using. The form-filler-outers believe what they have read - that the computers can spot a leaky report like uncanny. Result: Never have so many been so careful about so much.

People aren't nearly as hung up over the "true" story of the Kennedy assassination as writers of all these assassination books keep telling them they are.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if everyone could be as optimistic over the outcome of Vietnam and our other big problems as managers of big league baseball teams profess to be over the outcome of the pennant races?

No wonder people drive the way they do when the cars are not only made to go fast, but ADVERTISED to go fast - with exciting, exotic names that practically DARE you to turn 'em loose.

Junk mail is getting to be a bigger nuisance every day. Why not cool it by heating up the mailing cost?

Has anyone ever pinned down these student stirrer-uppers on just exactly what it is they want to make them happy?

That, says our snoopy surveyor, is what the people he overhears are saying to each other. Could one of them have been you?

Excesses of the Earl Warren United States supreme court have caused an acceleration of activity in states to adopt the Missouri plan for filling judicial positions in state courts.

The Warren court has rewritten the laws of the country. It has gone far beyond interpreting the nation's laws. It has taken an active legislative role.

This example hasn't been lost on the states.

The Missouri plan is a compromise appointive-elective system for filling judicial positions. Since its adoption Iowa, Kansas, Alaska, Colorado and Nebraska have put it into effect. New York state now is considering it.

Basically the plan calls for qualified lawyers and laymen to submit a recommended list for a judgeship to the governor. The governor then fills the opening.

The plan is desirable because it is designed to lift the judiciary above politics, relieve candidates from spending time and money in running for office and relieve the average voter of the responsibility of choosing a judge, a task for which he is not well qualified.

But the citizen does have a role in the process.

The initially appointed judge must periodically run for re-election if he desires to continue in office.

In this way the voter does have a voice in the judiciary - he holds a check rein on a judge's performance. If it is unsatisfactory he can be removed.

United States supreme court justices have virtual lifetime tenure no matter how ill fitted they are for their work or how poorly they perform their duties. It is interesting to note that they are appointed by the President and not elected to their positions, a sad reflection on the appointive process.

The Missouri plan combines the best of two systems but it is not paradise.

It has been demonstrated that qualified lawyers and laymen like the general public occasionally possess better hindsight than foresight.

The plan has also made apparent that no system is any better than the men administering it. Not all the choices by the committees and the governors, regardless of superior qualifications, have produced the best possible choices for the judiciary.

Politics haven't been entirely eliminated.

DOWN TO EARTH, YOU SOCIAL REBELS

A recent report of the American Medical Association states that the majority of drug abusers in this country are young people under the age of 30.

Coincidentally, but not accidentally, one of the slogans of these young people is, "You can't trust anyone over 30."

Even if we view the thing in the best possible light - change the word "abusers" to "experimenters" and grant that the younger generation has good reason to be dissatisfied with the world they are scheduled to inherit - the whole youth protest movement is basically self-defeating.

Short of killing themselves or wrecking their minds - as some of them are doing - today's youths will survive the all-too-fleeting years of their 20s and wake up one day to find themselves in the not-to-be-trusted category. What will their slogan be then?

Neither can the social rebels reject the present world and build the brave, new and beautiful world they talk so much about strictly from scratch.

"No one," says Dr. John A. Logan Jr., president of Hollins College, "can live without a knowledge of history in the broadest sense unless he is prepared to repeat all the mistakes of the past.

"No one can live entirely by reference to present problems and concerns. Perspective is everything."

We can't know where we are going without a knowledge of the probable consequences of our acts, and only some reference to the accumulated experiences of mankind can provide that knowledge.

The hippies, the acid-heads, the grass-smokers - lotus-eaters all - say they are involved in a search for their "real selves." But, says Logan, each of us needs to answer not only the question, "Who am I?" but also, "Where am I?"

We all live at a certain point in an evolving continuum of time. No quest for personal values can be successful except by reference to where our present standards came from and how and why they developed as they did.

"St. Paul is as relevant as Sartre, and Thomas Jefferson has at least as much to tell us about our society as Ayn Rand." Logan says.

Fortunately, the under-30s can't stop the calendar. It is to be hoped that the inevitable passing of time will bring them not only age and cooling passions but the wisdom to enable them to relate their youthful dreams to the world as it is, and perhaps change it for the better.

ON EDUCATION

Time was when education in this country was symbolized by the little red schoolhouse. Today, the symbol is the big yellow school bus.

It used to be a pleasant sight to see the children playing in the schoolyard, oblivious to the fact that some of them had different colored skin, and different religions, and different ancestors. Now, you find them very mindful of this, properly proportioned, smuggled in cars and buses which lumber in from every direction and selected neighborhoods.

Years ago, youngsters went to school to learn the three r's: readin', ritin', and rithmetic. There seems to be more emphasis today on two other r's: rock and roll. Only in institutions of higher education is a third "r" added: either radicalism or rioting.

In days of old, school kids prayer to Our Father in Heaven. This is now against the law. The emphasis these days is on instilling a proper respect for Big Brother Who Art, in Washington. When they talked about passing, students used to refer to the grades they were getting. Nowadays, passing has to do with a drag session, or zipping around a trailer truck at 80 miles an hour. As for grades, they're the things that go uphill and downhill. Students aren't graded; they're adjusted.

No longer will you find evidences of brutality such as hickory switches in schools. Only zip guns, switchblade knives, brass knuckles and other aids to conformity.

The teacher, too, has a different function. With a degree or two from a teachers' college, he or she is qualified to check the electronic teaching aids to make sure that they are working properly. And, the qualified teacher knows precisely how to arrange the cards for scoring by the electronic computer.

Kids used to be taught what was right.

Now all they hear about is rights.

TROUBLE IN PUERTO RICO

A plebiscite will be held in Puerto Rico on July 23 to set the future governmental course of that island. The people will vote on three propositions: one proposing to retain the present Commonwealth status, another to extend statehood, and a third to establish an independent nation. If the last one carries, it will have to be voted on by the U.S. Congress.

Officials of the Commonwealth have warned that several groups of communist-oriented revolutionaries are planning a terroristic campaign to disrupt the July 23 election. This is not surprising, since communists hate and fear free elections. The threatened terrorism in Puerto Rico could bring the same kind of violence that has afflicted other Latin American countries in recent months.

The Puerto Rico revolutionaries claim that they are in favor of independence for the Commonwealth. The kind of independence they would bring may be judged by the fact that they champion Fidel Castro and have a permanent representative at the Cuban headquarters of the Tri-Continental Congress. This is the organization established in January 1966 to coordinate what its founders call "wars of liberation in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

What the revolutionaries are really calling for is civil war in Puerto Rico. They may not be able to bring that about, but they could cause enough trouble to check the economic progress that has been taking place there. One of their aims is to reduce employment, thus creating discontent among the people. They are using the coming election as a focal point for their disruptive efforts. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It was the Democratic study group, dominated by some of the staunchest liberal supporters of President Johnson, which cut the ground out from under LBJ's railroad mediation - arbitration bill to head off the railroad strike. This rift between the liberal Democratic leadership and the President has been played down. Neither side is anxious to advertise it. However, it was a very serious factor during the debate over the anti-strike bill.

Long before the strike deadline, Johnson asked Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, chairman of the war labor board during World War II, to draft an act which would head off a tie-up of the nation's railroads.

Morse, who's a Johnson critic on foreign policy, risked a showdown with his labor friends in Oregon by drafting and introducing the bill.

He came up with a compromise whereby mediators would do their best to settle the strike during 90 days. But, if they failed, the unions would be forced to accept the mediators' terms for a period of two years after which the agreement would end.

Arthur Goldberg, former secretary of labor and former counsel for the United Steelworkers, advised that the Morse bill is the best possible in the emergency. George Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania, the famous labor negotiator, expressed the same opinion. So have other prominent labor experts. They describe it as a very sincere effort by President Johnson to preserve collective bargaining rather than adopt compulsory arbitration.

"The right to strike is a limited one in time of war," Morse told his labor friends. He reminded them that George Meany, now President of the AFL-CIO, had sat with him in various wartime labor disputes and voted against labor when strikes threatened.

RULE BY MINORITY

Out of the 24 unions involved in the railroad dispute, 17 have now settled with the carriers on the basis of a 5 per cent increase. The conductors are settling for 6 per cent. However, six shop craft unions, led by the international association of machinists, Roy Siemiller President, have refused.

It was Siemiller, incidentally, who broke the wage guidelines in the showdown with the airplane companies last year and almost forced congress to write a compulsory arbitration act at that time.

Sincere men are on both sides of the dispute and understandable issues are involved. The shop craft unions, however, are only 50,000 men compared with the 500,000 who have signed up with the carriers. Though the shop crafts include the metal workers, the blacksmiths, electricians and other skilled crafts, the machinists are the biggest group. They have seen wages for similar work skyrocket in the airplane and other industries, while the pay of skilled railroad labor has been kept down. This resulted from an old railroad brotherhood principle that wage increases should apply across the board to the man who sweeps up the baggageroom as well as to the highly skilled engineer.

The dispute became more accentuated last Monday when mediators in the Long Island railroad wage controversy, headed by George Ready, ex-aide to LBJ, recommended an immediate increase of 66 cents an hour, with a total wage for shop craft workers of $4.20 an hour in the third year.

This was immediately accepted by the Rockefeller administration, and immediately increased the lobbying efforts of machinist President Siemiller, and other craft unions in the halls of congress.

Their No. 1 spokesman was Harley Staggers, the benign congressman from West Virginia, elected with strong labor support. Staggers is chairman of the house commerce committee and voted against the railroad bill. However, Republicans and southern Democrats passed the bill out of committee over his head.

Staggers then declared war on the bill, said it would pass the entire house of representatives only over his dead body.

Joining him at first were such conscientious congressmen as Frank Thompson, N.J., Jim O'Hara, Ill., John Brademas, Ind., John Dingell, Mich., and John Moss, Calif. They are strong for the President but at first put labor ahead of the President.

SIEMILLER VS. LBJ

Dingell and Moss have written a substitute bill providing for railroad seizure. Sen. Morse, however, points out that this would permit a railroad administrator to set any wages he pleased, regardless of federal mediators. He could even cut wages, and labor couldn't do anything about it. The Moss-Dingell substitute was finally defeated.

The White House brought its big guns into play to influence New York congressmen. None other than Arthur Krim of United Artists, the big money raiser for the Democrats; also Eddie Weisl, the New York attorney, telephoned New York Democrats. Joe Califano of the White House staff did likewise.

But most of them seemed more loyal to Roy Siemiller of the machinists than to LBJ.

NOTE: The railroads, once vigorously opposed to compulsory arbitration, are now veering toward it. Reason is that when mediators came in with a recommendation during the Roosevelt administration, FDR would intervene on behalf of the unions and urge management to give a little more. This started the precedent of letting labor contest a mediation board's findings while management was forced to accept. Compulsory arbitration, say some management spokesmen, would be better than lopsided mediation.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Vast Purge of Congress Planned By Rail Union's Political League

Washington, D.C.: -- During most of the heated moments of the great train crisis, President Johnson kept his cool. But some of his advisers did not. And with friendly advisers such as these the President needs no enemies. They cost the Democrats money and manpower in next year's national election when both will be hard to come by.

Throughout the railway battle the President has been his own general staff. Only those inside the White House sanctum really know how much he read, how carefully he marshaled his forces and tactics. He amazed even the not easily surprised official gadfly, Sen. Wayne Morse.

The Oregonian, easily the Senate's keenest labor expert, was in the dentist's chair at 8:40 a.m. the other morning. Suddenly the phone rang. It was not a patient. It was the President. Mr. Johnson was calling to thank him for all his help in pushing the White House strike legislation through the Senate.

And then the President quoted from an intricate speech Sen. Morse had delivered in the Senate the previous afternoon. Obviously Mr. Johnson had gotten to the Congressional Record sometime between 6:30 and 8:30 the following morning shortly after the printed proceedings are delivered, and had read the long discussion. He knew every detail.

Some days later the President, still cool but now desperately aware that he was dealing with unionists who had become the toughest bargainers in the land, called in his cabinet for this and other world matters. The rail lines were within hours of embargoing (freezing) freight in the yards. It was noontime, June 14.

He asked each of them to analyze the emergency from their Department's viewpoint. Later some of them went to the White House press office. To the amazement of some of the cabinet members present, the Secretary who decided to get toughest with the tough was Alan Stephenson Boyd, head of the new Transportation Dept. Labor doesn't like him. He doesn't enthuse over them. And unmindful, or unknowing, that the President and AFL-CIO leader George Meany had privately talked things out several days earlier, Boyd sounded off.

He lashed at the labor leader most influential in America's transportation system -- Roy Siemiller, president of the AFL-CIO Machinists, who, under his leadership, have struck everything from rare ball (gun) powder plants to jet warplane production and airlines.

"Siemiller typifies a group of arbitrary individuals," said Boyd, "extremely small in number who apparently have no concern for public welfare but only for their own selfish interests."

When Siemiller, who rarely loses his cool, learned of this, he nearly burst a stitch. He was home recuperating from minor surgery.

Apparently Boyd soon heard from the White House. In a few hours his labor specialist, John Grimes, was taking soundings from the Machinists. They were not pleasant. And Boyd could not reach Siemiller. No private apologies were going to be accepted. So the next day the Secretary of Transportation -- having learned the facts of life --said publicly:

"I regret those remarks. In the midst of a tense situation I made, in response to questions from reporters yesterday, some remarks concerning Mr. Siemiller, president of the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM). I do not deal in personalities and regret those remarks."

But that did not end it. The past is just prelude. There is no area of transportation on land, sea or sky, or outer space in which Boyd's department will not have to deal with Siemiller's union. The IAM is not only on the rails, but in airlines, autos, buses, trucking, etc. From now on he is their primary target.

He himself was ill-advised. He should have known that the operational headed of the Machinists' negotiating and strike committees is IAM vice-president Joe Ramsey. He must retire on July 23rd, his 65th birthday. Saturday night the union gave him his going away party. After July 23rd, Siemiller takes over the active direction of the Machinists' transportation division. And so the feud is on.

This is no minor matter on the political as well as the industrial front.

The Machinists have a Non-Partisan Political League. It is based on their 1900 lodges in almost as many cities reaching all the way from Seattle to Miami. It is influential. And it has a long Congressional purge list set for the next national election.

They are charging the Congress with strikebreaking. And they will try to smash the political careers of those around whose political necks they have hung what they call this "albatross."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Some 200 persons will drown this summer in home swimming pools.

Most of the victims will be children. Most will die needlessly.

The home pool has no waves, tides, or motorboats to worry about. Yet, despite certain safety advantages over the lake or shore, pools too often are the sites of unnecessary accidents.

The number of home pool drownings in recent years has risen in proportion to the increasing popularity of backyard pools. Privately owned permanent pools now number nearly half-a-million.

Although pool owners are not charged higher premiums on their homeowners insurance, safety specialists warn that the premium for forgetting vital safety practices may be higher than anyone wants to pay.

A two-year-old boy was riding his tricycle in the backyard as his mother watched him from the living room window. Her attention was diverted by a telephone call. While she talked "two or three minutes" her son rode his shiny red tricycle into the family's swimming pool and drowned.

This tragedy occurred because the boy's family violated the first two rules on this list of 10 "musts" for home pool safety:

1. In-ground pools should be fenced by high vertical wooden slabs with pointed tops or chain link fences with inwardly slanted tops of some sharp material such as barbed wire. Gates to permanent above-ground pools should be kept locked and ladders to plastic above ground pools should be removed when pools are not in use.

2. Watch children closely. Lack of supervision is the largest single cause of toddler's drownings. An occasional glance from a house window is not enough. You must be outside with your child.

3. Under no circumstances should a child who cannot swim be allowed to use inflated toys. Such playthings are not lifesavers but potential killers. They may tempt young swimmers to try feats beyond their ability.

4. Your pool skimmer can be used to fish drowning swimmers out of the pool. Keep it handy at all times, along with a complete first aid kit.

5. Post safety rules, emergency procedures, and first aid instructions on permanent signs near the pool. Keep emergency telephone numbers next to the phone.

6. Bottles, glassware, food, and barbeque equipment should be kept away from poolside - and barefoot swimmers.

7. Construct poolside pavements of roughly textured cement or use an abrasive paint to prevent slippery surfaces.

8. Mark the depth of in-ground pools with permanent paint and divide shallow and deep sections with buoy lines.

9. Be sure the water is deep enough for the height of your diving board. Depth must be a minimum of eight feet for a "low board." For boards 10-16 feet high, the water depth should equal the height of the board.

10. Allow only a professional electrician to install and repair wiring, pumps, and lighting fixtures. Keep portable electrical equipment 10 feet from the pool to reduce the danger of shock.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if everyone could be as optimistic over the outcome of Vietnam and our other big problems as managers of big league baseball teams profess to be over the outcome of the pennant races?

No wonder people drive the way they do when the cars are not only made to go fast, but ADVERTISED to go fast - with exciting, exotic names that practically DARE you to turn 'em loose.

Junk mail is getting to be a bigger nuisance every day. Why not cool it by heating up the mailing cost?

Has anyone ever pinned down these student stirrer-uppers on just exactly what it is they want to make them happy?

That, says our snoopy surveyor, is what the people he overhears are saying to each other. Could one of them have been you?

Excesses of the Earl Warren United States supreme court have caused an acceleration of activity in states to adopt the Missouri plan for filling judicial positions in state courts.

The Warren court has rewritten the laws of the country. It has gone far beyond interpreting the nation's laws. It has taken an active legislative role.

This example hasn't been lost on the states.

The Missouri plan is a compromise appointive-elective system for filling judicial positions. Since its adoption Iowa, Kansas, Alaska, Colorado and Nebraska have put it into effect. New York state now is considering it.

Basically the plan calls for qualified lawyers and laymen to submit a recommended list for a judgeship to the governor. The governor then fills the opening.

The plan is desirable because it is designed to lift the judiciary above politics, relieve candidates from spending time and money in running for office and relieve the average voter of the responsibility of choosing a judge, a task for which he is not well qualified.

But the citizen does have a role in the process.

The initially appointed judge must periodically run for re-election if he desires to continue in office.

In this way the voter does have a voice in the judiciary - he holds a check rein on a judge's performance. If it is unsatisfactory he can be removed.

United States supreme court justices have virtual lifetime tenure no matter how ill fitted they are for their work or how poorly they perform their duties. It is interesting to note that they are appointed by the President and not elected to their positions, a sad reflection on the appointive process.

The Missouri plan combines the best of two systems but it is not paradise.

It has been demonstrated that qualified lawyers and laymen like the general public occasionally possess better hindsight than foresight.

The plan has also made apparent that no system is any better than the men administering it. Not all the choices by the committees and the governors, regardless of superior qualifications, have produced the best possible choices for the judiciary.

Politics haven't been entirely eliminated.

DOWN TO EARTH, YOU SOCIAL REBELS

A recent report of the American Medical Association states that the majority of drug abusers in this country are young people under the age of 30.

Coincidentally, but not accidentally, one of the slogans of these young people is, "You can't trust anyone over 30."

Even if we view the thing in the best possible light - change the word "abusers" to "experimenters" and grant that the younger generation has good reason to be dissatisfied with the world they are scheduled to inherit - the whole youth protest movement is basically self-defeating.

Short of killing themselves or wrecking their minds - as some of them are doing - today's youths will survive the all-too-fleeting years of their 20s and wake up one day to find themselves in the not-to-be-trusted category. What will their slogan be then?

Neither can the social rebels reject the present world and build the brave, new and beautiful world they talk so much about strictly from scratch.

"No one," says Dr. John A. Logan Jr., president of Hollins College, "can live without a knowledge of history in the broadest sense unless he is prepared to repeat all the mistakes of the past.

"No one can live entirely by reference to present problems and concerns. Perspective is everything."

We can't know where we are going without a knowledge of the probable consequences of our acts, and only some reference to the accumulated experiences of mankind can provide that knowledge.

The hippies, the acid-heads, the grass-smokers - lotus-eaters all - say they are involved in a search for their "real selves." But, says Logan, each of us needs to answer not only the question, "Who am I?" but also, "Where am I?"

We all live at a certain point in an evolving continuum of time. No quest for personal values can be successful except by reference to where our present standards came from and how and why they developed as they did.

"St. Paul is as relevant as Sartre, and Thomas Jefferson has at least as much to tell us about our society as Ayn Rand." Logan says.

Fortunately, the under-30s can't stop the calendar. It is to be hoped that the inevitable passing of time will bring them not only age and cooling passions but the wisdom to enable them to relate their youthful dreams to the world as it is, and perhaps change it for the better.

ON EDUCATION

Time was when education in this country was symbolized by the little red schoolhouse. Today, the symbol is the big yellow school bus.

It used to be a pleasant sight to see the children playing in the schoolyard, oblivious to the fact that some of them had different colored skin, and different religions, and different ancestors. Now, you find them very mindful of this, properly proportioned, smuggled in cars and buses which lumber in from every direction and selected neighborhoods.

Years ago, youngsters went to school to learn the three r's: readin', ritin', and rithmetic. There seems to be more emphasis today on two other r's: rock and roll. Only in institutions of higher education is a third "r" added: either radicalism or rioting.

In days of old, school kids prayer to Our Father in Heaven. This is now against the law. The emphasis these days is on instilling a proper respect for Big Brother Who Art, in Washington. When they talked about passing, students used to refer to the grades they were getting. Nowadays, passing has to do with a drag session, or zipping around a trailer truck at 80 miles an hour. As for grades, they're the things that go uphill and downhill. Students aren't graded; they're adjusted.

No longer will you find evidences of brutality such as hickory switches in schools. Only zip guns, switchblade knives, brass knuckles and other aids to conformity.

The teacher, too, has a different function. With a degree or two from a teachers' college, he or she is qualified to check the electronic teaching aids to make sure that they are working properly. And, the qualified teacher knows precisely how to arrange the cards for scoring by the electronic computer.

Kids used to be taught what was right.

Staggers is chairman of the house commerce committee and voted against the railroad bill. However, Republicans and southern Democrats passed the bill out of committee over his head.

Staggers then declared war on the bill, said it would pass the entire house of representatives only over his dead body.

Joining him at first were such conscientious congressmen as Frank Thompson, N.J., Jim O'Hara, Ill., John Brademas, Ind., John Dingell, Mich., and John Moss, Calif. They are strong for the President but at first put labor ahead of the President.

SIEMILLER VS. LBJ

Dingell and Moss have written a substitute bill providing for railroad seizure. Sen. Morse, however, points out that this would permit a railroad administrator to set any wages he pleased, regardless of federal mediators. He could even cut wages, and labor couldn't do anything about it. The Moss-Dingell substitute was finally defeated.

The White House brought its big guns into play to influence New York congressmen. None other than Arthur Krim of United Artists, the big money raiser for the Democrats; also Eddie Weisl, the New York attorney, telephoned New York Democrats. Joe Califano of the White House staff did likewise.

But most of them seemed more loyal to Roy Siemiller of the machinists than to LBJ.

NOTE: The railroads, once vigorously opposed to compulsory arbitration, are now veering toward it. Reason is that when mediators came in with a recommendation during the Roosevelt administration, FDR would intervene on behalf of the unions and urge management to give a little more. This started the precedent of letting labor contest a mediation board's findings while management was forced to accept. Compulsory arbitration, say some management spokesmen, would be better than lopsided mediation.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Vast Purge of Congress Planned By Rail Union's Political League

Washington, D.C.: -- During most of the heated moments of the great train crisis, President Johnson kept his cool. But some of his advisers did not. And with friendly advisers such as these the President needs no enemies. They cost the Democrats money and manpower in next year's national election when both will be hard to come by.

Throughout the railway battle the President has been his own general staff. Only those inside the White House sanctum really know how much he read, how carefully he marshaled his forces and tactics. He amazed even the not easily surprised official gadfly, Sen. Wayne Morse.

The Oregonian, easily the Senate's keenest labor expert, was in the dentist's chair at 8:40 a.m. the other morning. Suddenly the phone rang. It was not a patient. It was the President. Mr. Johnson was calling to thank him for all his help in pushing the White House strike legislation through the Senate.

And then the President quoted from an intricate speech Sen. Morse had delivered in the Senate the previous afternoon. Obviously Mr. Johnson had gotten to the Congressional Record sometime between 6:30 and 8:30 the following morning shortly after the printed proceedings are delivered, and had read the long discussion. He knew every detail.

Some days later the President, still cool but now desperately aware that he was dealing with unionists who had become the toughest bargainers in the land, called in his cabinet for this and other world matters. The rail lines were within hours of embargoing (freezing) freight in the yards. It was noontime, June 14.

He asked each of them to analyze the emergency from their Department's viewpoint. Later some of them went to the White House press office. To the amazement of some of the cabinet members present, the Secretary who decided to get toughest with the tough was Alan Stephenson Boyd, head of the new Transportation Dept. Labor doesn't like him. He doesn't enthuse over them. And unmindful, or unknowing, that the President and AFL-CIO leader George Meany had privately talked things out several days earlier, Boyd sounded off.

He lashed at the labor leader most influential in America's transportation system -- Roy Siemiller, president of the AFL-CIO Machinists, who, under his leadership, have struck everything from rare ball (gun) powder plants to jet warplane production and airlines.

"Siemiller typifies a group of arbitrary individuals," said Boyd, "extremely small in number who apparently have no concern for public welfare but only for their own selfish interests."

When Siemiller, who rarely loses his cool, learned of this, he nearly burst a stitch. He was home recuperating from minor surgery.

Apparently Boyd soon heard from the White House. In a few hours his labor specialist, John Grimes, was taking soundings from the Machinists. They were not pleasant. And Boyd could not reach Siemiller. No private apologies were going to be accepted. So the next day the Secretary of Transportation -- having learned the facts of life --said publicly:

"I regret those remarks. In the midst of a tense situation I made, in response to questions from reporters yesterday, some remarks concerning Mr. Siemiller, president of the International Assn. of Machinists (IAM). I do not deal in personalities and regret those remarks."

But that did not end it. The past is just prelude. There is no area of transportation on land, sea or sky, or outer space in which Boyd's department will not have to deal with Siemiller's union. The IAM is not only on the rails, but in airlines, autos, buses, trucking, etc. From now on he is their primary target.

He himself was ill-advised. He should have known that the operational headed of the Machinists' negotiating and strike committees is IAM vice-president Joe Ramsey. He must retire on July 23rd, his 65th birthday. Saturday night the union gave him his going away party. After July 23rd, Siemiller takes over the active direction of the Machinists' transportation division. And so the feud is on.

This is no minor matter on the political as well as the industrial front.

The Machinists have a Non-Partisan Political League. It is based on their 1900 lodges in almost as many cities reaching all the way from Seattle to Miami. It is influential. And it has a long Congressional purge list set for the next national election.

They are charging the Congress with strikebreaking. And they will try to smash the political careers of those around whose political necks they have hung what they call this "albatross."

KITCHEN KNIVES

A few well designed well constructed knives can, with proper care, make a world of difference in the length of time and the efficiency it takes to do a job.

The basic equipment should consists of a 3-inch paring knife for peeling vegetables or trimming meat away from the home.

An 8-inch roast slicer is best for cold processed meats, cheeses, roasts, and steak, and for such fruits as melons and citrus.

An 8-inch French knife is preferred for chopping, mincing, and shredding carrots, green peppers, celery, onions, green beans, and cabbage.

A 9-inch bread and cake knife will prevent crumbling of bakery goods.

Each knife should be chosen to fit your hand so it won't slip or slide in cutting.

Always cut food on a wooden board. This provides better safety for the knife edge and the user, and helps to prevent dullness.

Use knives only for the purpose for which they were designed, never for cutting bones, metal, string, or paper.

Store knives separately so that cutting edges will not become dulled by knocking against each other. Never drop knives loosely into a drawer - it's dangerous and quickly dulls the edge.

Rinse, wash, and dry knives immediately after use. Never soak. When hand washing, hold the handle out of the water, washing down the blade. Don't use scouring powders on the edge of blades.

"Don't wash knives in an automatic dishwasher unless heat and moisture resistant handles are specified by the manufacturer.

Never heat knife in a flame-the heat will destroy the temper of the metal.

Milk Products Contribute to Nutrition

By Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
Extension Home Economists
University Extension Cente

KENNETT -- This month the foods program has emphasis focused on milk products as it is Dairy Month. Dairy products are often hidden in our favorite foods and labeled milk, cheese, ice cream, etc. These foods contribute much toward good nutrition in our diets.

Did you know?

1 cup whole milk - Over 1/6 daily protein needs for a woman

1 cup whole milk - About 1/7 daily protein requirement for men

1 cup whole milk - 350 International Units Vitamin A

All adults need 5000 Units per day.

Did you know?

Milk is almost a perfect food but it is low in Vitanmin C and iron. Did you know that skimed milk is higher in protein than whole milk? Since the fat is removed; the skim milk replaces it.

One whole carrot supplies (5-1/2 x 1 inch size) 5500 International Units Vitamin A. An inch cube of Cheddar or American Cheese supplies 220 Units of Vitanmin A which is 1/15th of needed daily requirement of calcium. You realize immediately dairy foods supply necessary nutrients as thiamine, riboflavin, and niacin. The latter are 13 vitamins which are known to influence the healthfulness of our nervous systems.

The calcium milk products contain is needed by all people for healthy hair, nails, teeth, and in the regulation of tissue and blood building.

Non-fat dry milk and evaporated milk are shelf products the homemaker can rely on in times of emergencies or between market trips. These products are economical in price. The non-fat dry milk lacks the Vitamin A; the fat soluble vitamin, and usually Vitamin D.

Use milk shakes, malts, homemade custards, cream soups, and another way to use non-fat dry milk is to whip it into potatoes and cooked cereals. Milk satisfies and wards off hunger.

The sherbets and ice creams contain some milk. This depends on the quality of the dessert. These desserts have added calories. We can not reliable depend upon ice cream to supply the nutrients whole milk does in the diet.

The comparison of nutrients in this article were compiled from Home and Garden Bulletin, No. 72 "Nutritive Values of Foods." Homemakers who are using this bulletin in planning meals can adequately meet the daily requirements.

After the honoree opened her gifts, punch, coffee, sandwiches and cookies were served.

Miss Rister was honored at a miscellaneous shower April 22 in the community room of Security National Bank. Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. Louis Bolden and Mrs. George Springs.

Miss Rister was presented a corsage of yellow rose buds. The bride's chosen colors were used in decorations.

After gifts were opened, punch, coffee and cake inscribed with the couple's names were served.

After weeks of discouragement in trying to locate a job, I heard of an opening at a lumber mill, applied and was hired. It took the better part of a day to fill out various forms, take a physical examination and learn about the type of work I was to do. I went home tired, but exhilarated by the fact that I would be starting to work the next evening -- that is, until I turned on the radio for the local news. Then I heard the announcement that I was on strike!

Everett D. Williams, Jr.

No Grandchild For President By Father's Day

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Father's Day came and went and Luci Johnson Nugent said she saw no signs her baby's birth was imminent.

Counting on having the baby by Sunday, though, Luci had provided an oval picture frame as a Father's Day gift for President Johnson.

His grandchild's photo was supposed to go in it. Instead, Luci said she provided a poem, explaining about the empty frame. The felt lining of the picture frame was half in pink, half in blue, with question marks in pink on the blue and in blue on the pink.

Luci provided this information for reporters after she and her husband, Patrick J. Nugent, attended 11:15 a.m. Mass Sunday at their Roman Catholic parish church, St. Mary's Cathedral.

Nearby, at St. David's Episcopal church, Luci's mother, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, was attending services. The First Lady has been staying overnight with the Nugents at their fashionable Austin home to be with them when the baby comes.

Milk Products Contribute to Nutrition

By Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
Extension Home Economists
University Extension Center

KENNETT -- This month the foods program has emphasis focused on milk products as it is Dairy Month. Dairy products are often hidden in our favorite foods and labeled milk, cheese, ice cream, etc. These foods contribute much toward good nutrition in our diets.

Did you know?

1 cup whole milk - Over 1/6 daily protein needs for a woman

1 cup whole milk - About 1/7 daily protein requirement for men

1 cup whole milk - 350 International Units Vitamin A

All adults need 5000 Units per day.

Did you know?

Milk is almost a perfect food but it is low in Vitanmin C and iron. Did you know that skimed milk is higher in protein than whole milk? Since the fat is removed; the skim milk replaces it.

One whole carrot supplies (5-1/2 x 1 inch size) 5500 International Units Vitamin A. An inch cube of Cheddar or American Cheese supplies 220 Units of Vitanmin A which is 1/15th of needed daily requirement of calcium. You realize immediately dairy foods supply necessary nutrients as thiamine, riboflavin, and niacin. The latter are 13 vitamins which are known to influence the healthfulness of our nervous systems.

The calcium milk products contain is needed by all people for healthy hair, nails, teeth, and in the regulation of tissue and blood building.

Non-fat dry milk and evaporated milk are shelf products the homemaker can rely on in times of emergencies or between market trips. These products are economical in price. The non-fat dry milk lacks the Vitamin A; the fat soluble vitamin, and usually Vitamin D.

Use milk shakes, malts, homemade custards, cream soups, and another way to use non-fat dry milk is to whip it into potatoes and cooked cereals. Milk satisfies and wards off hunger.

The sherbets and ice creams contain some milk. This depends on the quality of the dessert. These desserts have added calories. We can not reliable depend upon ice cream to supply the nutrients whole milk does in the diet.

The comparison of nutrients in this article were compiled from Home and Garden Bulletin, No. 72 "Nutritive Values of Foods." Homemakers who are using this bulletin in planning meals can adequately meet the daily requirements.

Miss Rister was honored at a miscellaneous shower April 22 in the community room of Security National Bank. Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. Louis Bolden and Mrs. George Springs.

Miss Rister was presented a corsage of yellow rose buds. The bride's chosen colors were used in decorations.

After gifts were opened, punch, coffee and cake inscribed with the couple's names were served.

After weeks of discouragement in trying to locate a job, I heard of an opening at a lumber mill, applied and was hired. It took the better part of a day to fill out various forms, take a physical examination and learn about the type of work I was to do. I went home tired, but exhilarated by the fact that I would be starting to work the next evening -- that is, until I turned on the radio for the local news. Then I heard the announcement that I was on strike!

Cards Take Lead On 4-Hitter By Hughes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Hughes pitched four-hit Ball and Orlando Cepeda smacked a two-run homer in the eighth inning Sunday to lift St. Louis to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The victory gave the Cards a slim hold on first place in the National League by a few percentage points.

At San Francisco the Cardinals scored in the first inning on singles by Roger Maris, Cepeda and Tim McCarver.

The Giants tied it in the sixth when Tom Haller led off with a bloop double, went to third on a ball by Hughes, and scored on Jim Hart's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth, Maris walked and Cepeda followed with his homer over the left field fence. The Cards picked up an insurance run in the ninth on Bob Tolan's single.

A Father's Day crowd of 38,280 watched as Hughes brought his record to 6-2. Gaylord Perry was the loser.

Danny Cater, Ramon Webster and Campy Campaneris each had two hits. Cater drove in two runs with a triple and a double.

It was the first loss for the Tigers Joe Sparma whose record is now 6 and 1. Hunter boosted his victory string to seven games against four losses.

Cash was the biggest problem for Hunter as he followed up his wind-blow single with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Hunter got the first two men to face him in the ninth then, filled the bases on a walk, a single and a bunt single. When Don Wert followed with a single, A's Manager Alvin Dark sent in Tony Pierce and moved Hunter to first.

Pierce struck out Brown to end the game.

Dark made the move to have a lefthander work against Brown and have Hunter available to pitch to Al Kaline, if necessary. Hunter played first base in high school.

The A's meet the Indians in Cleveland in a twi-night double header. Lew Krausse and Chuck Dobson are scheduled to start for the A's and Sonny Siebert and Steve Hargan for Cleveland.

St. Louis goes to Houston with Bob Gibson campaigning for his ninth victory against Mike Cuellar.

Carolina 500 To Richard Petty

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — There isn't much left for stock car race driver Richard Petty to do but win more money and set more records for others to shoot at.

Petty, 29-year-old son of former driving great Lee Petty, took the Carolina 500-mile race Sunday and now has won on all of the South's five super speedways except the one at Charlotte. And even there, he crossed the finish line at the head of the pack one time—as a relief driver.

He has won 59 times in NASCAR's Grand National Division, more than any other driver in history, since beginning his career under his father's tutelage in 1959.

This year he has won 11 times, nine in his last 15 starts, and has banked $59,440 in official earnings to bring his career total well above the $300,000 mark. Every dollar of it has been won in Plymouth race cars.

"It's not so much a thrill to win now," he said after beating Dodge's Buddy Baker by more than a lap in Sunday's chase of more than 4½ hours over the mile-long North Carolina Motor Speedway. "But the money spends just as well."

Petty, a curly haired, 6-foot-5 200-pounder, pocketed $16,125 in this one.

Fisk Forfeits To Dexter

Fisk came up short of players.

Poplar Bluff is scheduled to meet Fisk in a doubleheader tonight starting at 8 p.m.

Thursday Dexter travels to Poplar Bluff for a pair of games.

I arrived at the airport in the middle of a sudden downpour. With no raincoat or umbrella, I wondered where I was going to park in the crowded lot, and how I was going to get to the terminal in time for my plane without getting soaked. Then an idea came to me. I drove up to the terminal entrance and picked out a man who looked ready to make a dash for the lot.

"Would you like a ride?" I offered. "I'll take you to your car if you'll drive me back here in yours."

With an amazed and grateful expression on his face, the man quickly got in. Three problems were neatly solved: I got his parking place, I didn't get soaked, he didn't get soaked.

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — Guy Wimberley of Albuquerque, N.M., shot a five-under-par Sunday to win the Navajo Trail Golf Tournament for the second year in a row. He shot a 139 for the 36 holes and won by three strokes.

FRANCORCHAMPS, Belgium (AP) — Dan Gurney captured the Grand Prix auto race of Belgium Sunday, becoming the first American in an American-made car ever to win a Grand Prix that counts toward the world championship.

Gurney, 36, of Costa, Mesa, Calif., driving an American-Eagle he designed and built, beat Jackie Stewart of Britain in a BRM by 63 seconds, competing the 244.776-mile test in one hour, 40 minutes, 49.4 seconds. His average speed was 145.665 miles per hour in sunny weather.

When Stanford University officials apologized to a male freshman for an error that assigned him to a women's dormitory, he stated, "I am willing to live wherever the university wishes."

First In NL Since 1965 No-Hitter To Astro Hurler

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Wilson won't mind passing up another breakfast. . .if it means more champagne before dinner.

Wilson, a 22-year-old Houston rookie, pitched an overpowering, 2-0 no-hitter — first in the National League since 1965 — against the usually potent Atlanta Braves Sunday.

The 6-foot-3 right-hander walked three Braves, but struck out 15 — including five of the last six he faced — in hurling the first no-hitter in the Astrodome. And he did it all on an empty stomach.

"I didn't change one thing today," he said between sips of the bubbly in the chaotic Astros' clubhouse. "Oh, yes, there was one thing. My wife didn't cook breakfast for me. She wasn't feeling good."

Would he skip breakfast before his next start?

"I'll try it one more time and see what happens."

Los Angeles cuffed the Reds 5-3, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs split a double-header with the New York Mets, winning 4-3 after losing by the same score in 10 innings.

The American League-leading Chicago White Sox swept a pair from the New York Yankees 7-3 and 4-0, Washington edged Boston 3-2 in 10 innings, California topped Baltimore 5-3, and Minnesota downed Cleveland 4-2.

Wilson, who got a saving assist from third baseman Bob Aspromonte in the sixth inning, walked Denis Menke leading off the eighth, then struck out pinch hitters Rico Carty, Charles Lau and Clete Boyer.

In the ninth, Felipe Alou fouled out to Aspromonte, Tito Francona fanned — and slugging Hank Aaron stood between Wilson and the champagne.

"I consider him one of the best clutchers in the game," Wilson said later.

"I checked the scoreboard to see who they had coming up. I didn't want to face Aaron, but after I walked Menke in the eighth, I knew I'd have to."

Aaron ran the count to 3-2, fouled off the next pitch and then went down swinging.

"He just threw it right past me," Aaron said. "This kid threw as hard as anybody we've faced all year.

"He's the kind of guy that makes me want to retire from the game."

The Astros clipped Phil Niekro for their two runs in the fourth on Sonny Jackson's single, Jim Wynn's double, a single by Rusty Staub and an infield out.

Wilson, who came into the game with a 3-3 record, retired the first 14 batters before walking Menke in the fifth.

With two out in the sixth, Aspromonte made a diving stop of Alou's smash to his left, recovered and threw out the runner while still on his knees.

"Aspro made a great throw," Wilson said. "He actually saved the game."

The no-hitter was the first in the NL since Sandy Koufax beat the Cubs with a perfect game on Sept. 9, 1965. Baltimore's Steve Barber and Stu Miller combined for a no-hitter against Detroit on April 30, but the Tigers beat the Orioles 2-1.

Bo Belinsky, now with the Astros, was the last rookie to hurl a no-hitter, accomplishing the feat for the Los Angeles Angels against Baltimore in 1962.

The former Houston pitchers — Don Nottebart and Ken Johnson — pitched no-hitters for the Astros on the road, Nottebart beat the Phillies 4-1 in 1963 but Johnson was beaten by Cincinnati 1-0 the next year.

Harvey Haddix was the last pitcher to stymie the Braves, pitching 12 perfect innings against them in 1959 before losing 1-0 on Joe Adcock's 13th inning double.

Left-hander Claude Osteen weathered Cincinnati 12 hits and stroked a two-run single, helping the Dodgers knock the Reds out of the top spot for the first time since April 27.

Matty Alou collected four hits for the second day in a row, leading the Pirates past Philadelphia. Winning pitcher Tommie Sisk drilled a two-run single in a four-run first inning burst that offset the Phillies' late surge.

Tom Reynolds' leadoff homer in the 10th inning lifted the Mets past Chicago in the opener but the Cubs snapped a 3-3 deadlock in the eighth inning of the nightcap on Lee Thomas' sacrifice fly, following singles by Glenn Beckert and Billy Williams.

NCAA Crown To Arizona St.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ron Davini, fiery little catcher for Arizona State's NCAA baseball champs, was dumbfounded when told he had been voted most outstanding player of the 21st College World Series Sunday night.

"I can't talk, except to say several other guys deserved it more," stammered the 19-year-old sophomore from Anaheim, Calif.

The award was a tribute to Davini's .409 Series hitting and superb fielding. His uniform is always the first to get dirty. His teammates call him "pig pen." He's so excitable, Coach Bobby Winkles had him write "relax" in big letters on the back of his catcher's mitt.

A second NCAA baseball crown in three years, gained with an 11-2 romp over Houston, is a tribute to the coaching and recruiting zeal of Winkles, a 37-year-old former White Sox infielder from Swifton, Ark.

Nicklaus' Record 275 Wins U.S. Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — "I felt like an idiot, standing there with a one-iron in my hand," Jack Nicklaus said. "But I knew what I had to do to win this golf tournament."

The bulky Golden Bear, at age 27 perhaps the best golfer the world has seen, was explaining the final moments of his record-shattering triumph in the United States Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

"I wasn't thinking about records," Nicklaus said over and over. "Records come. They're made to be broken. I just wanted to win this tournament."

He did. And—he insists it was entirely incidental—he broke Ben Hogan's 19-year-old Open scoring record of 276 by one stroke with a curling, 23-foot putt on the final hole.

It gave him a final round 65, five under par for the stately old Baltusrol Course, and a 72-hole total of 275, adding the Open scoring record to his Masters mark of 271.

But he was more concerned with adding this second Open title—he won his first in 1962 in his first year as a pro—to his collection of three Masters, a PGA and a British Open crown.

"I had to make a decision on the 18th tee," Nicklaus said. The 18th is a 542-yard, par 5 hole. "I was four strokes ahead and knew I had to beat (Arnold) Palmer to win it.

"Two things were going through my mind. One was what Arnie said last year, that he was thinking about breaking Hogan's record when he had that blow-up in San Francisco.

"The other was that Dick Mayer took a seven on this same hole and lost the Open in 1954.

"Those were the things I was thinking about. I knew the only way Arnie could catch me was for him to get a three and me a seven. So I was shooting for a six or better.

"So I took out a one iron—I felt like an idiot doing it—and aimed it down the right side of the fairway. I was in the rough, on something that looked like a cable. So I got a drop and hit an eight iron back to the fairway."

He reached the green in three "and that's when I knew I had the tournament won."

For all intents and purposes, however, he had it won much earlier, when he reeled off a string of three straight birdies on the third through fifth holes. That gave him a lead he never relinquished.

Palmer, who was tied with Nicklaus and Casper for second going into the final round, finished with a 69 for second place at 279. Playing in the same twosome with Nicklaus, he didn't get a birdie until the 17th, but added another at the 18th.

Casper, the defending champion, was bothered by driving problems and settled for fourth with a 72 for 282, one stroke back of Don January, who had a final round 70.

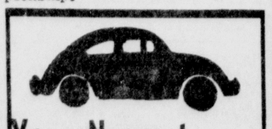

Marty Fleckman, the 23-year-old amateur from Port Arthur, Tex., who led the third round, blew sky high with an 80 for 289, putting him far, far back in the pack. He started with three bogeys, and also bogeyed six of seven holes on the back nine.

Hogan, 55, seeking his fifth Open title, had a final 72 for 292.

Cards Take Lead On 4-Hitter By Hughes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Hughes pitched four-hit Ball and Orlando Cepeda smacked a two-run homer in the eighth inning Sunday to lift St. Louis to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The victory gave the Cards a slim hold on first place in the National League by a few percentage points.

At San Francisco the Cardinals scored in the first inning on singles by Roger Maris, Cepeda and Tim McCarver.

The Giants tied it in the sixth when Tom Haller led off with a bloop double, went to third on a ball by Hughes, and scored on Jim Hart's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth, Maris walked and Cepeda followed with his homer over the left field fence. The Cards picked up an insurance run in the ninth on Bob Tolan's single.

A Father's Day crowd of 38,280 watched as Hughes brought his record to 6-2. Gaylord Perry was the loser.

Danny Cater, Ramon Webster and Campy Campaneris each had two hits. Cater drove in two runs with a triple and a double.

It was the first loss for the Tigers Joe Sparma whose record is now 6 and 1. Hunter boosted his victory string to seven games against four losses.

Cash was the biggest problem for Hunter as he followed up his wind-blow single with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Hunter got the first two men to face him in the ninth then, filled the bases on a walk, a single and a bunt single. When Don Wert followed with a single, A's Manager Alvin Dark sent in Tony Pierce and moved Hunter to first.

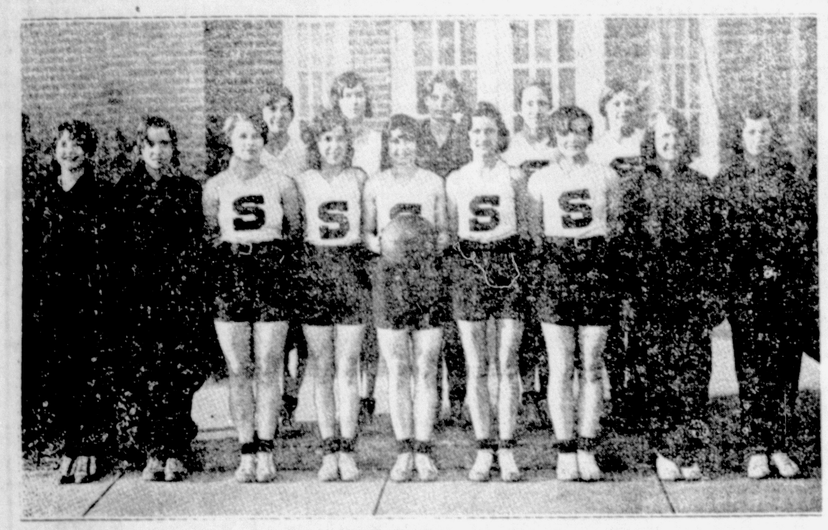

Pierce struck out Brown to end the game.

Dark made the move to have a lefthander work against Brown and have Hunter available to pitch to Al Kaline, if necessary. Hunter played first base in high school.

The A's meet the Indians in Cleveland in a twi-night double header. Lew Krausse and Chuck Dobson are scheduled to start for the A's and Sonny Siebert and Steve Hargan for Cleveland.

St. Louis goes to Houston with Bob Gibson campaigning for his ninth victory against Mike Cuellar.

Carolina 500 To Richard Petty

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — There isn't much left for stock car race driver Richard Petty to do but win more money and set more records for others to shoot at.

Petty, 29-year-old son of former driving great Lee Petty, took the Carolina 500-mile race Sunday and now has won on all of the South's five super speedways except the one at Charlotte. And even there, he crossed the finish line at the head of the pack one time—as a relief driver.

He has won 59 times in NASCAR's Grand National Division, more than any other driver in history, since beginning his career under his father's tutelage in 1959.

This year he has won 11 times, nine in his last 15 starts, and has banked $59,440 in official earnings to bring his career total well above the $300,000 mark. Every dollar of it has been won in Plymouth race cars.

"It's not so much a thrill to win now," he said after beating Dodge's Buddy Baker by more than a lap in Sunday's chase of more than 4½ hours over the mile-long North Carolina Motor Speedway. "But the money spends just as well."

Petty, a curly haired, 6-foot-5 200-pounder, pocketed $16,125 in this one.

Fisk Forfeits To Dexter

DEXTER -- Fisk forfeited its Connie Mack baseball game Saturday to Dexter.

Fisk came up short of players.

Poplar Bluff is scheduled to meet Fisk in a doubleheader tonight starting at 8 p.m.

Thursday Dexter travels to Poplar Bluff for a pair of games.

I arrived at the airport in the middle of a sudden downpour. With no raincoat or umbrella, I wondered where I was going to park in the crowded lot, and how I was going to get to the terminal in time for my plane without getting soaked. Then an idea came to me. I drove up to the terminal entrance and picked out a man who looked ready to make a dash for the lot.

"Would you like a ride?" I offered. "I'll take you to your car if you'll drive me back here in yours."

With an amazed and grateful expression on his face, the man quickly got in. Three problems were neatly solved: I got his parking place, I didn't get soaked, he didn't get soaked.

FRANCORCHAMPS, Belgium (AP) — Dan Gurney captured the Grand Prix auto race of Belgium Sunday, becoming the first American in an American-made car ever to win a Grand Prix that counts toward the world championship.

Gurney, 36, of Costa, Mesa, Calif., driving an American-Eagle he designed and built, beat Jackie Stewart of Britain in a BRM by 63 seconds, competing the 244.776-mile test in one hour, 40 minutes, 49.4 seconds. His average speed was 145.665 miles per hour in sunny weather.

First In NL Since 1965
No-Hitter To Astro Hurler

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Wilson won't mind passing up another breakfast. . .if it means more champagne before dinner.

Wilson, a 22-year-old Houston rookie, pitched an overpowering, 2-0 no-hitter — first in the National League since 1965 — against the usually potent Atlanta Braves Sunday.

The 6-foot-3 right-hander walked three Braves, but struck out 15 — including five of the last six he faced — in hurling the first no-hitter in the Astrodome. And he did it all on an empty stomach.

"I didn't change one thing today," he said between sips of the bubbly in the chaotic Astros' clubhouse. "Oh, yes, there was one thing. My wife didn't cook breakfast for me. She wasn't feeling good."

Would he skip breakfast before his next start?

"I'll try it one more time and see what happens."

Los Angeles cuffed the Reds 5-3, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs split a double-header with the New York Mets, winning 4-3 after losing by the same score in 10 innings.

The American League-leading Chicago White Sox swept a pair from the New York Yankees 7-3 and 4-0, Washington edged Boston 3-2 in 10 innings, California topped Baltimore 5-3, and Minnesota downed Cleveland 4-2.

Wilson, who got a saving assist from third baseman Bob Aspromonte in the sixth inning, walked Denis Menke leading off the eighth, then struck out pinch hitters Rico Carty, Charles Lau and Clete Boyer.

In the ninth, Felipe Alou fouled out to Aspromonte, Tito Francona fanned — and slugging Hank Aaron stood between Wilson and the champagne.

"I consider him one of the best clutchers in the game," Wilson said later.

"I checked the scoreboard to see who they had coming up. I didn't want to face Aaron, but after I walked Menke in the eighth, I knew I'd have to."

Aaron ran the count to 3-2, fouled off the next pitch and then went down swinging.

"He just threw it right past me," Aaron said. "This kid threw as hard as anybody we've faced all year.

"He's the kind of guy that makes me want to retire from the game."

The Astros clipped Phil Niekro for their two runs in the fourth on Sonny Jackson's single, Jim Wynn's double, a single by Rusty Staub and an infield out.

Wilson, who came into the game with a 3-3 record, retired the first 14 batters before walking Menke in the fifth.

With two out in the sixth, Aspromonte made a diving stop of Alou's smash to his left, recovered and threw out the runner while still on his knees.

"Aspro made a great throw," Wilson said. "He actually saved the game."

The no-hitter was the first in the NL since Sandy Koufax beat the Cubs with a perfect game on Sept. 9, 1965. Baltimore's Steve Barber and Stu Miller combined for a no-hitter against Detroit on April 30, but the Tigers beat the Orioles 2-1.

Bo Belinsky, now with the Astros, was the last rookie to hurl a no-hitter, accomplishing the feat for the Los Angeles Angels against Baltimore in 1962.

The former Houston pitchers — Don Nottebart and Ken Johnson — pitched no-hitters for the Astros on the road, Nottebart beat the Phillies 4-1 in 1963 but Johnson was beaten by Cincinnati 1-0 the next year.

Harvey Haddix was the last pitcher to stymie the Braves, pitching 12 perfect innings against them in 1959 before losing 1-0 on Joe Adcock's 13th inning double.

Left-hander Claude Osteen weathered Cincinnati 12 hits and stroked a two-run single, helping the Dodgers knock the Reds out of the top spot for the first time since April 27.

Matty Alou collected four hits for the second day in a row, leading the Pirates past Philadelphia. Winning pitcher Tommie Sisk drilled a two-run single in a four-run first inning burst that offset the Phillies' late surge.

Tom Reynolds' leadoff homer in the 10th inning lifted the Mets past Chicago in the opener but the Cubs snapped a 3-3 deadlock in the eighth inning of the nightcap on Lee Thomas' sacrifice fly, following singles by Glenn Beckert and Billy Williams.

NCAA Crown To Arizona St.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ron Davini, fiery little catcher for Arizona State's NCAA baseball champs, was dumbfounded when told he had been voted most outstanding player of the 21st College World Series Sunday night.

"I can't talk, except to say several other guys deserved it more," stammered the 19-year-old sophomore from Anaheim, Calif.

The award was a tribute to Davini's .409 Series hitting and superb fielding. His uniform is always the first to get dirty. His teammates call him "pig pen." He's so excitable, Coach Bobby Winkles had him write "relax" in big letters on the back of his catcher's mitt.

A second NCAA baseball crown in three years, gained with an 11-2 romp over Houston, is a tribute to the coaching and recruiting zeal of Winkles, a 37-year-old former White Sox infielder from Swifton, Ark.

Nine players from his 1966 club signed pro contracts, including Riggie Jackson, now with the Kansas City Athletics.

Nicklaus' Record 275 Wins U.S. Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — "I felt like an idiot, standing there with a one-iron in my hand," Jack Nicklaus said. "But I knew what I had to do to win this golf tournament."

The bulky Golden Bear, at age 27 perhaps the best golfer the world has seen, was explaining the final moments of his record-shattering triumph in the United States Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

"I wasn't thinking about records," Nicklaus said over and over. "Records come. They're made to be broken. I just wanted to win this tournament."

He did. And— he insists it was entirely incidental— he broke Ben Hogan's 19-year-old Open scoring record of 276 by one stroke with a curling, 23-foot putt on the final hole.

It gave him a final round 65, five under par for the stately old Baltusrol Course, and a 72-hole total of 275, adding the Open scoring record to his Masters mark of 271. s

But he was more concerned with adding this second Open title— he won his first in 1962 in his first year as a pro— to his collection of three Masters, a PGA and a British Open crown.

"I had to make a decision on the 18th tee," Nicklaus said. The 18th is a 542-yard, par 5 hole. "I was four strokes ahead and knew I had to beat (Arnold) Palmer to win it.

"Two things were going through my mid. One was what Arnie said last year, that he was thinking about breaking Hogan's record when he had that blow-up in San Francisco.

"The other was that Dick Mayer took a seven on this same hole and lost the Open in 1954.

"Those were the things I was thinking about. I knew the only way Arnie could catch me was for him to get a three and me a seven. So I was shooting for a six or better.

"So I took out a one iron— I felt like an idiot doing it — and aimed it down the right side of the fairway. I was in the rough, on something that looked like a cable. So I got a drop and hit an eight iron back to the fairway."

He reached the green in three "and that's when I knew I had the tournament won."

For all intents and purposes, however, he had it won much earlier, when he reeled off a string of three straight birdies on the third through fifth holes. That gave him a lead he never relinquished.

Palmer, who was tied with Nicklaus and Casper for second going into the final round, finished with a 69 for second place at 279. Playing in the same twosome with Nicklaus, he didn't get a birdie until the 17th, but added another at the 18th.

Casper, the defending champion, was bothered by driving problems and settled for fourth with a 72 for 282, one stroke back of Don January, who had a final round 70.

Marty Fleckman, the 23-year-old amateur from Port Arthur, Tex., who led the third round, blew sky high with an 80 for 289, putting him far, far back in the pack. He started with three bogeys, and also bogeyed six of seven holes on the back nine.

Hogan, 55, seeking his fifth Open title, had a final 72 for 292.

ANN'S VISIT TO VIET

'Better Than Medicine'

By John Donnelly

Sun-Times columnist Ann Landers has visited thousands of American servicemen in Vietnam. Here is another report on her trip.

Special to The Sun-Times

SAIGON—"She really worked miracles," said Maj. Fred Ritvo of Boston, the Special Services officer of the 93d Evacuation Hospital in Long Binh. "The patients have talked of nothing but Ann Landers since she was here."

"Can you imagine," mused a lieutenant, "she took down the names and telephone numbers of nearly a hundred men in this hospital alone—and I know she's been to five others. She's going to call the wives and mothers and sweethearts all over the country when she gets back to the states."

"Who's going to pay your telephone bill, Annie?" cracked a sergeant. "Oh I think I can handle it." Ann shot back. "When you get right down to it, it's not really as big-hearted as you make it sound. I'm going to get just as much pleasure out of those calls as the women I'll be talking to. Can you imagine what a thrill I'm going to get when I telephone Jess Ledesma's mother out in San Bernardino and Bob Conley's mother in Watkins, Minn., and Don Burrell's mother in Salt Lake City—and say, 'I just saw your son and he's in wonderful shape and he sends his love.' A message like that is going to make those women feel like a million dollars. Making people happy is the greatest fun there is. I'm going to have the time of my life!"

Talked To The Wounded

During her 10 days visit in this war-torn country, Ann Landers talked to almost 2,500 people, most of them wounded and sick GIs. She talked so much, in fact, that on her last day in Vietnam, she confided, in her famous Midwestern twang, typical of her native Iowa, "It's a wonder I've got any pipes left."

"I've never met so many people in such a short period of time," she said, "or for that matter, gotten to know a place so well. I feel as if I've been here for months."

Ann Landers came to Vietnam as a guest of the United States Army. She came to reassure the troops, and ended up being reassured herself.

"I am completely convinced," she said, "that our boys are getting the best and most thorough care. The dedication of the medical people, the physicians, the nurses, the medics, the Red Cross—everyone—is truly magnificent."

Everyone who met Ann agreed she was pretty magnificent herself. "I walked through the wards with her," said a physician at the 85th Evacuation Hospital in Qui Nhon. "I listened to her talk to the men. That woman has an incredible gift for saying exactly the right thing to everybody. She can talk medicine or psychiatry with experts and use the correct terms and she can hang right in there with a kid from Columbus with bop talk."

There She Was, At His Bed

It was the same story wherever she went. "She's better than medicine," said a malaria patient. "I was feeling miserable. Chills and the works. Then I heard someone say, 'Ann Landers is in the ward.' I thought I was dreaming but when I looked up there she was standing by my bed. She put her hand on my face and patted it just like she was my mother or something. She said, 'How you doing, fella?' All I could think of was I got to get her autograph. My wife will never believe this.'"

"I've never seen anything like her," said an administrative officer. "Most celebrities who come here, walk through a couple of wards, get their pictures taken and leave. This woman has visited every single patient. It's almost 11 at night and I know she's been on her feet since this morning. Where in the world does that little woman get all the energy?"

"That little woman is a human dynamo. She is a shade under 5 feet 2, weighs 110 pounds and has the figure of a girl. She has already worn out her escort officer, Maj. William Hart," said a Red Cross worker.

"How DO you keep going?" asked Michael Rosenberg, an anesthetist from Detroit. "I keep going the same way YOU keep going," she replied. "When you are around people who are giving as much as these fellows are giving, how on earth could you do less?"

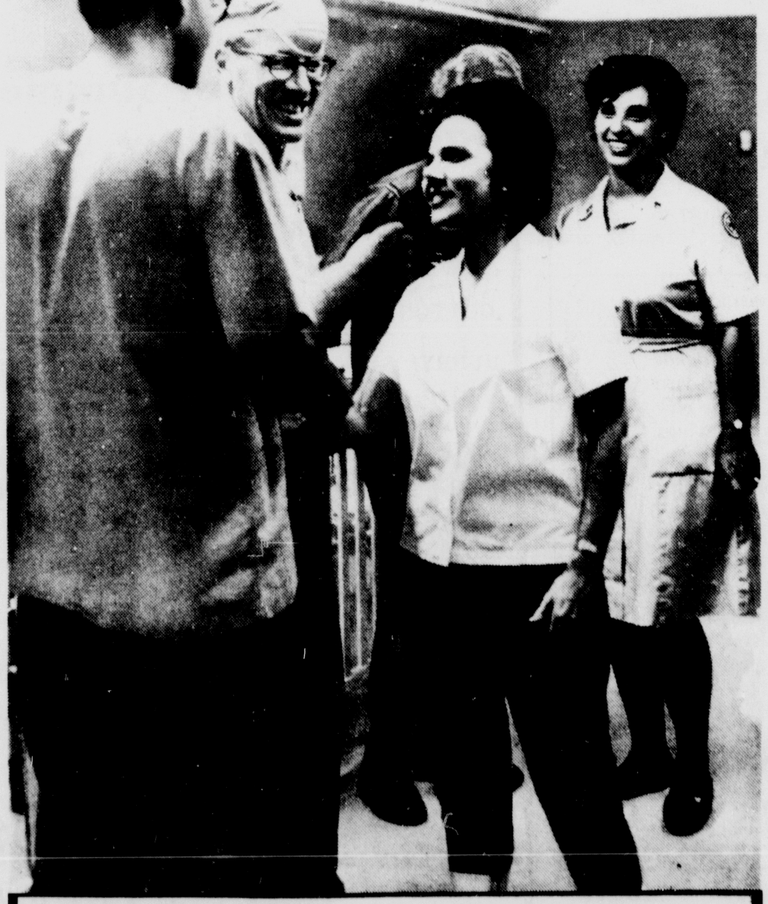

Keeps Her Sense Of Humor

Ann's sense of humor never deserted her during her grueling ordeal of visiting the sick and wounded. When a young corporal from Wyoming asked her to lean a little closer so he could smell her perfume, she asked, "How long has it been since you've smelled perfume, fella?"

"Ten and a half months," the corporal answered.

"That's all for you, brother," Ann quipped. "You could be dangerous."

At 11:05, after Ann had seen the last patient in the last ward, the executive officer of the hospital suggested that she come into his office and take off her shoes. "I wouldn't dare," Ann replied. "I'd never get them back on."

Dr. Michael Rosenberg (left) of Detroit and Dr. John Payne of Idaho Falls, Ida., stop to chat with Ann Landers before returning to surgery at the 85th Evacuation Hospital. "How do you keep going?" asked Dr. Rosenberg of the indefatigable ward-touring Miss Landers. "I keep going the same way you keep going," she replied.

ANN'S VISIT TO VIET

'Better Than Medicine'

By John Donnelly

Sun-Times columnist Ann Landers has visited thousands of American servicemen in Vietnam. Here is another report on her trip.

Special to The Sun-Times

SAIGON—"She really worked miracles," said Maj. Fred Ritvo of Boston, the Special Services officer of the 93d Evacuation Hospital in Long Binh. "The patients have talked of nothing but Ann Landers since she was here."

"Can you imagine," mused a lieutenant, "she took down the names and telephone numbers of nearly a hundred men in this hospital alone—and I know she's been to five others. She's going to call the wives and mothers and sweethearts all over the country when she gets back to the states."

"Who's going to pay your telephone bill, Annie?" cracked a sergeant. "Oh I think I can handle it." Ann shot back. "When you get right down to it, it's not really as big-hearted as you make it sound. I'm going to get just as much pleasure out of those calls as the women I'll be talking to. Can you imagine what a thrill I'm going to get when I telephone Jess Ledesma's mother out in San Bernardino and Bob Conley's mother in Watkins, Minn., and Don Burrell's mother in Salt Lake City—and say, 'I just saw your son and he's in wonderful shape and he sends his love.' A message like that is going to make those women feel like a million dollars. Making people happy is the greatest fun there is. I'm going to have the time of my life!"

Talked To The Wounded

During her 10 days visit in this war-torn country, Ann Landers talked to almost 2,500 people, most of them wounded and sick GIs. She talked so much, in fact, that on her last day in Vietnam, she confided, in her famous Midwestern twang, typical of her native Iowa, "It's a wonder I've got any pipes left."

"I've never met so many people in such a short period of time," she said, "or for that matter, gotten to know a place so well. I feel as if I've been here for months."

Ann Landers came to Vietnam as a guest of the United States Army. She came to reassure the troops, and ended up being reassured herself.

"I am completely convinced," she said, "that our boys are getting the best and most thorough care. The dedication of the medical people, the physicians, the nurses, the medics, the Red Cross—everyone—is truly magnificent."

Everyone who met Ann agreed she was pretty magnificent herself. "I walked through the wards with her," said a physician at the 85th Evacuation Hospital in Qui Nhon. "I listened to her talk to the men. That woman has an incredible gift for saying exactly the right thing to everybody. She can talk medicine or psychiatry with experts and use the correct terms and she can hang right in there with a kid from Columbus with bop talk."

There She Was, At His Bed

It was the same story wherever she went. "She's better than medicine," said a malaria patient. "I was feeling miserable. Chills and the works. Then I heard someone say, 'Ann Landers is in the ward.' I thought I was dreaming but when I looked up there she was standing by my bed. She put her hand on my face and patted it just like she was my mother or something. She said, 'How you doing, fella?' All I could think of was I got to get her autograph. My wife will never believe this.'"

"I've never seen anything like her," said an administrative officer. "Most celebrities who come here, walk through a couple of wards, get their pictures taken and leave. This woman has visited every single patient. It's almost 11 at night and I know she's been on her feet since this morning. Where in the world does that little woman get all the energy?"

"That little woman is a human dynamo. She is a shade under 5 feet 2, weighs 110 pounds and has the figure of a girl. She has already worn out her escort officer, Maj. William Hart," said a Red Cross worker.

"How DO you keep going?" asked Michael Rosenberg, an anesthetist from Detroit. "I keep going the same way YOU keep going," she replied. "When you are around people who are giving as much as these fellows are giving, how on earth could you do less?"

Keeps Her Sense Of Humor

Ann's sense of humor never deserted her during her grueling ordeal of visiting the sick and wounded. When a young corporal from Wyoming asked her to lean a little closer so he could smell her perfume, she asked, "How long has it been since you've smelled perfume, fella?"

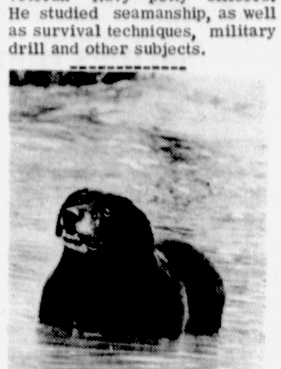

"Ten and a half months," the corporal answered.

"That's all for you, brother," Ann quipped. "You could be dangerous."

At 11:05, after Ann had seen the last patient in the last ward, the executive officer of the hospital suggested that she come into his office and take off her shoes. "I wouldn't dare," Ann replied. "I'd never get them back on."

Dr. Michael Rosenberg (left) of Detroit and Dr. John Payne of Idaho Falls, Ida., stop to chat with Ann Landers before returning to surgery at the 85th Evacuation Hospital. "How do you keep going?" asked Dr. Rosenberg of the indefatigable ward-touring Miss Landers. "I keep going the same way you keep going," she replied.

WHEN YOU'RE A DACHSHUND, even a small puddle poses problems, and a real flood makes travel next to impossible. This Dachshund found the water waist deep everywhere he went in Grand Island, Nebr., as floodwaters covered a wide portion of the town.

Four Fords Driven Down From Cape Girardeau

50 Years Ago
June 19, 1917

J. H. Minton, Joe Stubbs, jr., Roger Bailey and Frank Mollenhour drove to Cape Girardeau, Wednesday to drive four Fords down.

G. A. Dempster went to St. Louis this week to drive the new motor hearse down.

Cape Girardeau, Sikeston and Poplar Bluff are each bidding for the headquarters of the reorganized Missouri Sixth. No site has been definitely decided upon as the training camp, but Sikeston has a fairly good chance to land it.

Miss Kate Poindexter, who has been holding a stenographic position in Jonesboro, Ark., spent Sunday in Sikeston. She left on Monday for Vicksburg, Miss., to reside, and her father, J. A. Poindexter, Mrs. Farmer and daughter will move to that city later.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading you for years and I thought I had heard everything, but I ran across a news item in the paper today that is more fantastic than anything I have ever read in your column.

Here in Santa Barbara a new place of business has opened. It is called The Psychodelic Shop. They sell accessories for smoking marijuana, pot pipes, "roach" (cigaret papers) and toys to amuse people while on LSD trips. They also offer paintings, jewelry and drawings by young artists and far-out phallic sculpture.

The police chief insists he cannot close the shop because there is no law against it. He also said, "We can't shut down a place of business just because some people don't like it."

As a courageous crusader who has always upheld high moral standards, will you please say something about authorities who hide behind the law to permit such an establishment to operate?
---SANTA BARBARA CITIZEN

Dear Santa: I can't see that anybody is hiding behind anything. The police chief stated that he is unable to make an arrest because no law has been broken. If the shop sold marijuana or LSD the chief could and would padlock it at once, but selling accessories is not against the law.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is a belated thank you. Three years ago my wife sent for your booklet on alcoholism. She was no drinker but I was. That booklet lay on the dresser for three months and finally one night I decided to read it even though I was not ready to admit I had a drinking problem.

Reading your booklet was the first step toward ending a living hell. I recognized myself in those pages and finally had to admit I was an alcoholic. Here are a few things I don't have to worry about anymore:

(1) My wife leaving me.
(2) Excuses for being away from work.
(3) Excuses for being too "sick" to go places.
(4) What to say to bill collectors when they come to the house and I can't pay because I am broke.
(5) Where did I leave the car last night?
(6) How did I get home?
(7) Did I say anything in front of the kids that I ought to be ashamed of?

I could go on for pages, but I think you have the idea. Your booklet made me go to Alcoholics Anonymous, and there I found the help I needed. I know now the only difference between a drunk in a penthouse and a drunk in the gutter is the height that separates them. -- THANKFUL

Dear Thankful: So am I. I appreciate your letter more than I can say.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you told a wife whose husband was interested in wife swapping -- "sure, people get curious, and sometimes it doesn't take them 20 years, but curiosity is no excuse for behaving like animals."

On behalf of such animals as lions, Canadian geese, otters, cardinals and almost any type except cowbirds, I object. Tney wouldn't dream of such behavior!

I was sure you knew better. -- TORONTO EDITOR

Dear Editor: My apologies to the lions, Canadian geese, otters, cardinals and all others whom I offended by lumping them with humans. You are right. I should have known better.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

During the war my father hitched a ride on a Navy plane. Snow, mixed with freezing rain, was coming down.

"I hope you have good deicing equipment," my father said to the pilot.

"Oh, yes," the pilot reassured him. "We have the very latest."

Thank goodness!" said my father.

"Yes," the pilot continued, pointing to a pile of boxes in the back of the plane. "I'm on my way to a Naval air station in Rhode Island to have it installed."

125,000-Bale Cotton Crop No Burden

HAYTI -- This year's cotton crop probably will be around 125,000 bales in Missouri, Fred Mullins, assistant officer in charge of the department of agriculture's classing office.

Production is not expected to tax the facilities of the new classing office, under construction, which has adequate storage space to handle an average crop.

In 1945 production was nearer average -- 392,000 bales.

Last year's crop was 163,000 bales.

"The reason for the decline the last two years is the new federal law controlling cotton production coupled with bad weather, which caused a late planting," Mullins said.

"Because of the federal ruling offering payment for land left idle," Mullins said, "acreage planted in cotton will be down about 25 per cent from last year."

Other estimates are that the 1967 Missouri cotton production will be around 20 per cent of a normal crop.

The cotton classing office is the only one in Missouri. It offers its services to farmers free of charge.

The office takes samples of the farmer's cotton and grades it. The grade provides the basis for determining the value of the cotton on both the market and in federal loans.

The office provides a news service for the farmers concerning cotton conditions in the area and on the market.

"More than 99 per cent of all the cotton produced in Missouri is classed here," Mullins said.

Considerable cotton acreage lost due to the adverse weather conditions during the planting season in Southeast Missouri is being replanted with soybeans, since it is now too late in Missouri to replant cotton. Under a special regulation, farmers can plow up abandoned cotton and replant with the beans without loss of federal farm program payments. This is the second consecutive year that this situation has occurred.

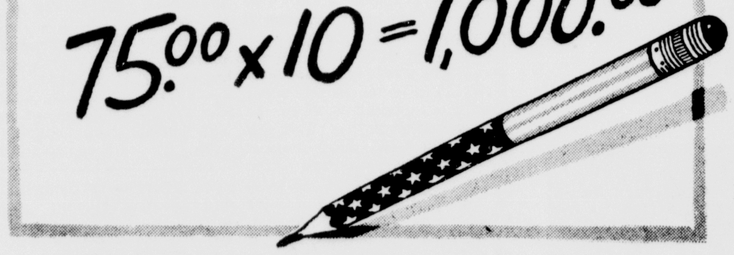

The new building is scheduled for completion July 1.

Costing $163,000, the new structure is being built by Kemp Whisenhunt of Blytheville, Ark., who has executed a five-year lease for its use by the USDA.

The new building on Highway 84, on the east side of Hayti, will have 35 per cent more usable space than the old office with most of this space being used for laboratory work and storage.

"In the past all of the cotton samples couldn't be stored in the classing office, but this will not be the case this year.

Job Tensions Not Smoke Killed Poor Old Charley

BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE FALLEN SMOKER

Charley was a hard-working attorney for a public agency. While most public employees can handle the gaff, handling the work fell upon poor old Charley. In fact, he became so overwhelmed with what he had to do and became so burdened by the tensions and pressures of his job that he increased his smoking habit to such a rate that it was near impossible to find him in his smoke filled room. When they did find poor old Charley, he was dead. His heavy smoking has ruined his oxygen tanks and he died of lung cancer.

Shortly therefore, Charley's widow filed a claim for death benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Law, only to be turned down.

"Sorry," she was told, "but Charley died because he smoked too much and not because of his job."

"He smoked too much because of the pressures and tensions of his employment," retorted the tenatious widow. "His job killed him as sure as I stand here."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Charley's widow to collect death benefits for the fallen smoker?

This is how the judge ruled: He sided with the widow. In doing so, he held that since it was credible that Charley increased his smoking habit because of his heavy work load and the pressures and tensions of his job, and since his heavy smoking was a contributing factor in the development of the lung cancer, his death arose out of his employment so as to entitle his widow to death benefits.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Charley's widow to collect death benefits for the fallen smoker?

This is how the judge ruled: He sided with the widow. In doing so, he held that since it was credible that Charley increased his smoking habit because of his heavy work load and the pressures and tensions of his job, and since his heavy smoking was a contributing factor in the development of the lung cancer, his death arose out of his employment so as to entitle his widow to death benefits.

SPRING

A raindrop fell from out a near-blue sky,
The whispering breeze is like

Honeybees swarm in a field close by,
Winter has gone and spring is

In Cambridge, Mass., non-students like to hang around the Harvard campus, attracted by what one Harvard junior terms the "tinsel and titillation of the academic." One bogus student was exposed at a student songfest; he turned out to be the only person who knew all the stanzas of "Fair Harvard."

During the war my father hitched a ride on a Navy plane. Snow, mixed with freezing rain, was coming down.

"I hope you have good deicing equipment," my father said to the pilot.

"Oh, yes," the pilot reassured him. "We have the very latest."

Thank goodness!" said my father.

"Yes," the pilot continued, pointing to a pile of boxes in the back of the plane. "I'm on my way to a Naval air station in Rhode Island to have it installed."

The meetings will be held at the Bell City NSC July 11 and Aug. 16, 23 and 29.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. (James 1:5)

PRAYER: Our Father, give us the grace to place our full faith through prayer in Thy strength and guidance. Be with us always, just as Thy presence was with Thy Son, including that dreadful human moment when He gave His life for us. In His name we pray. Amen.

Modern math–Savings Bond Style

If you bought ten $25 U.S. Savings Bonds, you'd pay $187.50 . . . and get back $250 at maturity.

Whether you buy just one Bond—or a Bond every month on the Payroll Savings Plan—that $4 for $3 return is guaranteed by the U.S. Government.

And now, with the new 4.15% interest rate, E Bonds mature faster—in just 7 years! Your old Bonds will earn more, too. And they'll continue to grow for you, at the new interest rate, as long as you hold them. So now Savings Bonds are better to buy, and hold, then ever.

And buying Savings Bonds helps build your security another way, too—by helping build your country's security. Knowing you're doing your part to support our men in Vietnam is a star-spangled good feeling you can't measure with numbers.

Discover that feeling for yourself, today . . . while starting a solid financial foundation for your future. Ask about the convenient Payroll Savings Plan where you work—or buy Bonds regularly at your bank.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, June 19, the 170th day of 1967. There are 195 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1819, the Savannah arrived in Liverpool, England, after the first Atlantic crossing by a steamship.

On this date—

In 1586, colonists sailed from Roanoke, Va., ending the first settlement of the English in America.

In 1754, a congress of seven American colonies was held in Albany, N.Y., to discuss union for defense.

In 1867, Emperor Maximilian of Mexico was executed by the rebel, Benito Juarez.

In 1934, the U.S. Congress created the Federal Communications Commission to regulate interstate communications by wire and radio.

In 1953, convicted spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg were executed at Sing Sing Prison in Ossining, New York.

In 1945, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was welcomed in New York with the greatest ovation the city had ever given a hero.

Ten years ago — Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi arrived in Washington on a state visit.

Five years ago — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev threatened to sign a peace treaty with East Germany that, he said, would end the allied occupation of West Berlin.

One year ago — Peru's army claimed it had snuffed out a year-long campaign by Communist guerrillas to stir up an anti-government uprising in the Andes.

Missourians Agree on Value of Reading

JEFFERSON CITY -- A survey of public opinion about libraries, conducted by the Missouri State Library in news media around the state, has revealed facts about library users.

Out of more than 4,000 questionnaires returned, 58 per cent came from persons in the 30-50 age group. The largest single group of library users replying were in the $3,000-$6,000 income bracket.

Fourteen percent of respondents said they never used library service and 23 per cent had not visited a library in a year or more.

Yet 42 per cent said they agreed that "one should read widely to keep fully informed." Library service in Missouri is widely available in the areas studied as indicated by the fact that 92 per cent had libraries in or near their towns. Largest decreasing percentages for nonfiction, children's books, newspapers, magazines, films and art reproductions.

In appraising the study Charles O'Halloran, state librarian, said, "While some of the replies tend to verify previously known facts about library usage, a survey of thid kind -- conducted through media rather than through the library itself -- presents a current and objective picture of how, and the extent to which, people are using public libraries in Missouri. It helps to reveal who today's library users are and what their needs are. This sort of information helps us keep libraries in gear with current values and needs."

Under the Missouri Library Association's theme, "Only FREE People May Read FREELY," readers will be urged to enjoy the rare privilege Americans have of free access to reading material on all subjects -- a guarantee of our free society -- which many accept but to not always use to advantage.
